Airmen From Lockbourne In City For Full Military Funeral Service

Taps sounded Tuesday afternoon for Lieutenant Jack Goodchild, one of Circleville's prominent and popular youths.

As full military funeral services were being conducted in the Methodist church it was revealed that the flight instructor, killed last Friday in a collision between two planes, died a hero.

Lieutenant Clall Lambert of Ventura, Cal., who said he was Lieutenant Goodchild's first pupil and that on his recommendation had been named an instructor himself, informed the flyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Goodchild, Watt street, that he had been instructed by his superiors at Orlando army air base, Orlando, Fla., to inform them that the 19-year-old aviator had given his life to save that of a student flyer. The student, Lieutenant Lawrence Amlil of Pittsfield, Maine, was the only survivor of the two plane crash.

Saved Companion
"Jack helped to throw Amlil free of the damaged plane," Lieutenant Lambert said, "but in so doing lost his own life. He could have jumped himself, but had he done so his student would have died."

Lieutenant Lambert said the crash happened when the Goodchild plane was only 2,500 feet in the air. Both planes were flying blind at the time of the collision. The second plane which was carrying Lieutenants James P. Corbin of San Mateo, Cal., and Arthur D. Ebick of Rome, New York, came up under the Goodchild plane, Lieutenant Lambert said.

When the plane Lieutenant Goodchild was in crashed, his body was thrown clear. The youth was not burned.

However, in adherence to Army requests, the casket in which the body arrived last Monday afternoon was not opened. It had been sealed and was covered with an American flag.

Military Rites

Military rites were conducted at the church, the Rev. Clarence Swearingen in charge. Burial was in Forest cemetery by the Defense funeral home.

Lockbourne army air base sent a guard of honor, pall bearers, a firing squad and a bugler to participate in the services. Arrangements for Lockbourne participation were made with the executive officer there by Lieutenant Lambert.

Lieutenant Goodchild's widow, the former Rosemary Huffer, returned to Circleville with the body of her husband.

Denounces Strikes

WAR-TIME strikes are denounced as "treason" by Warren H. In reply, AFL President William Green asserted that Atherton was looking at "the inconsequential faults of a small minority."

RETURN SLIGHT ON LEND-LEASE

Great Puzzle Of Values Provided As U. S. Cash Pours To Allies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D) La., made public today a letter from former Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., disclosing that the United States has received little reverse lend-lease from its Allies and has been paying cash to the British empire for raw materials.

While the letter was written August 2, Ellender said that he has made inquiries and has found that the situation is substantially unchanged.

Characterizing Stettinius' letter as unsatisfactory, Ellender planned to make a senate speech criticizing failure of Allied nations to provide more reverse lend-lease for the United States.

The Stettinius letter revealed: 1. Russia wants to give the U. S. reverse lend-lease, but the volume of aid is limited by the Soviet's own requirements.

2. Lend-lease agreements with Latin American countries call for payment of a portion of the cost in dollars, with the rest apparently forgiven.

3. The U. S. has been paying (Continued on Page Two)

SUGAR RATIONS WILL CONTINUE REST OF YEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A War Food Administration spokesman disclosed today that present civilian and industrial sugar rations will be maintained for at least the rest of the year.

This optimistic development on the wartime food front is expected to be announced soon in an official government report.

Civilians will continue to get their half-pound of sugar a week and industrial users can expect to receive 80 percent of their 1941 consumption, the spokesman said.

He added, however, that the situation might be changed if "terrifically unfavorable changes arise in the shipping industry." This is not foreseen at the present time, he asserted.

Sugar imports, which hit a record high of 580,000 tons in July, dropped off 25 percent in August and 40 percent in September, he pointed out. But the seasonal upswing in production—which starts in the Fall and continues into January—will see more sugar arriving from Louisiana, Florida, Puerto Rico and Cuba.

Southwest Truck Drivers Quit Work In Protest Of WLB Delay

MAJOR CITIES AFFECTED

Many Factories Awaiting Shipments Already Long Overdue

By International News Service
Thousands of tons of war materials were tied up in the southeast today as the truck drivers strike halted freight traffic in nine southeastern cities and spread westward to St. Louis, Mo.

Between 7,000 and 8,000 drivers, members of the International Teamsters Union, AFL, were idle in what some labor leaders said was a protest against the delay of the War Labor Board in acting on their demands for wage increases and longer vacations.

Other labor leaders declared the strike, which started sporadically last week, "was encouraged and promoted by truck line owners who have violated the contract in many different ways."

In the Birmingham, Ala., area alone an estimated 1,500,000 pounds of freight was piled up, waiting delivery to all parts of the South, including many war plants. Other towns in the area also reported long-overdue shipments were jamming the warehouses and terminals.

Major Cities Hit

Other major cities in the southeast affected by the strike were Atlanta, Ga., Nashville, Memphis and Knoxville, Tenn., New Orleans, La., Montgomery, Ala., Jackson, Miss., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Latest scene of the walkout was in St. Louis where roving bands of strikers patrolled the city in automobiles and attempted to turn back loaded trucks. Many of the drivers were told by the strikers (Continued on Page Two)

DRAFT DODGER TOLD TO LEAVE U. S., NOT RETURN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 12.—Stanley Mocarsky became a man without a country today; he was ordered to leave his native United States because he failed to report for induction into its armed services.

In one of the most unusual sentences handed out since passage of the Selective Service Act, Federal Judge Carroll C. Hincks gave the Hartford resident 30 days in which to leave the country, never to return.

Mocarsky told the court he would not fight for his country which had never "done anything for him."

Other reasons advanced for failure to report for induction by Mocarsky were that he had had to stand in a breadline in Chicago and beg for food at one time and also that his father had been disabled in the first World War.

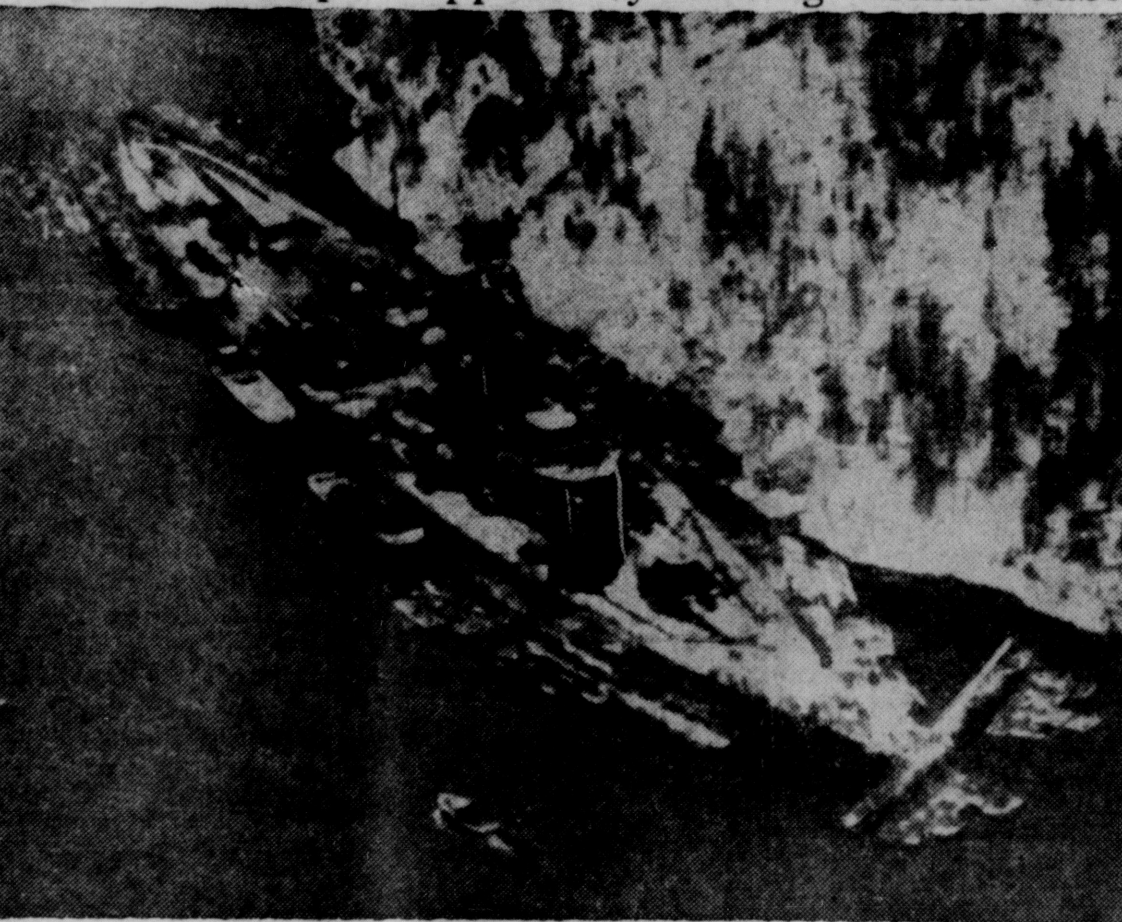

Assistant U. S. Attorney William Nahum declared that the father had been injured in an accident and not in combat. He claimed Mocarsky has an "anti-social complex."

Judge Hincks lectured the defendant for his attitude and declared he had no right to live in the United States. The sentence was imposed despite Mocarsky's pleas for some other penalty.

GERMANY'S newest and mightiest battleship, the 35,000-ton Tirpitz, has been severely damaged by British midget submarines which invaded the harbor of the warship in Norway's Alten Fjord and hurled torpedoes into the Nazi dreadnought and possibly hit other major German naval units.

The attack took place September 22. Three of the British subs that took part in the daring raid were lost. The picture above, a British air ministry photo, shows the Tirpitz lying close inshore at Aas Fjord.

Developments In Relations With Japan Guarded By Censors

BULLETIN

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The cause of democracy won an enormous triumph today when Portugal gave to Great Britain and the United States shipping facilities in the Azores to aid in ending the menace of U-boat warfare.

Announcement of Portugal's immense contribution to the Allied war effort was made in the house of commons by Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Portugal, however, will retain her present carefully guarded status of neutrality, Churchill said.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Heavy censorship was maintained today by Portuguese authorities regarding developments in the relations between that country and Japan.

An official statement clarifying the situation was expected to be forthcoming almost at any time.

The Japanese foreign office, according to a Domei broadcast from Tokyo, denied that Japan had issued an ultimatum to Portugal.

News dispatches said that blackouts were instituted in Lisbon and other cities of Portugal last night and that all civil defense services were tightened.

"The lights of Lisbon have gone out and the most luxurious of the war-time capitals is taking on a warlike aspect," said a dispatch to the London News Chronicle.

SHOE STAMP ONLY GOOD IF RETAINED IN BOOK

Shoe dealers of the Circleville district were admonished Tuesday by the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office to abide by regulations which prevent acceptance of shoe stamps which have been detached from ration books.

All dealers, under OPA regulations, must post signs which declare that they cannot accept loose stamps. This regulation became effective September 1, but some of the local dealers have failed to place their signs in a conspicuous place.

Elmer Stebleton, rationing board clerk, said some dealers are cooperating in a splendid manner, while some others are taking loose stamps.

Stebleton said the sign to be posted should read: "Rationing regulations prohibit this store from accepting loose war ration stamps for shoes selected or delivered at this store."

NATION'S FOOD SUPPLY DROPS SEVEN PERCENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The nation's 1943 food supply will be about seven percent below last year's level, it was disclosed today, with less milk, peaches, pears, apples, wheat, corn and oats available to the consumer.

According to the department of agriculture's monthly crop report, however, there will be more eggs, white and sweet potatoes, beans, rice and chickens and oranges this year.

In the basic crops division, the estimated 1943 corn production will be the fourth largest in history—3,055,605,000 bushels—but still short of the 1942 crop by 119,549,000 bushels.

Likewise in a slump is the wheat crop, expected as of October 1 to be 14.8 percent below last year's production, and oats, 15 percent under the last year figure.

During September, milk production declined "somewhat more rapidly than usual," the department stated, with total output set at 9,300,000,000 pounds—about 2½ percent short of the same month a year ago. Contributing factors were labor and feed shortages.

It was indicated there will be serious shortages of apples, peaches and pears the rest of the year due to poor weather conditions and other factors. Declines in this year's crop as compared with 1942 included: apples 38,540,000 bushels; peaches 37 percent; pears 23 percent.

This picture was brightened by the fact that there will be a 13 percent boost in the citrus fruit crop this year—oranges and grapefruit particularly.

NAZIS DIVIDED ON JUST HOW TO SEEK PEACE

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The German leaders today were reported unable to decide with which of the Allies they ought to try to negotiate a separate peace.

Reuter, quoting a Berne dispatch to the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet, said the Nazi officials recently held a conference for this purpose. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler were said to have demanded a separate peace with America and Great Britain, but No. 2 Nazi Hermann Goering and other high-ranking army officers urged such a step with Russia.

Airmen To Beat Life Out of Huns

Churchill Sounds Praise Of Yankees For Hastening Day Of Victory

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today that the American and British air forces will "inexorably beat the life out of industrial Germany and thus hasten the day of final victory."

In a message to Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding United States forces in the European theatre, the premier extended his war cabinet's congratulations and thanks for the "magnificent achievements" of the U. S. Eighth Army Force. Churchill particularly lauded the group's battles over Germany in recent days, which culminated in last week's successes.

"I am confident," the prime minister said, "that with the ever-growing power of the Eighth Air Force striking alternate blows with the RAF bomber command, we will together inexorably beat the life out of industrial Germany and thus hasten the day of final victory."

Churchill pointed out that the American airmen got to their target despite heavy enemy opposition and wrought extensive devastation upon Nazi military and industrial installations. He declared:

"In broad daylight, the crews of your bombers fought their way through the strongest defense the enemy could bring against them. They ranged the length and breadth of Germany, striking with deadly accuracy at many of the most important hostile industrial installations and ports.

"Your fighters and bombers inflicted serious losses on the German air force and by forcing the enemy to weaken his other fronts contributed notably to the success of Allied arms everywhere."

The war cabinet also congratulated the American ground crews, "without whose technical skill and labor these feats of arms would not be possible."

BOSTON LOWELL FACES TERM AS DRAFT DODGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Robert Traill Spence Lowell, Jr., "one of the Boston Lowells," awaits sentence tomorrow as a draft dodger. He faces a possible five years in jail and $10,000 fine.

Lowell, who is 26, instead of appearing for induction September 8 wrote President Roosevelt that he was opposed to war. He is a son of a retired navy commander and a cousin of A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard.

New Devices Used By Huns Add To U-Boat Menace In Atlantic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox warned today that the submarine menace in the Atlantic is "very serious" as the result of new devices being used by the Germans on their U-boats.

At his first news conference since his return from a 25,000-mile inspection tour of the European and Mediterranean theatres, Knox said that the reappearance of submarines in the Atlantic was the cause for alarm and would be until the end of the war.

The secretary declined to describe or give any information on the new devices being used by the Germans, but he said that American naval officials are studying the problem, presumably in an effort to find methods to counter-act the German "secret" weapons.

One new method used by the U-boats was the addition of anti-aircraft guns on the decks of subs to fight off attacking American and British planes.

Even during the Summer months when submarine activity in the Atlantic was at a new low, Knox repeatedly warned that the Germans might stage a comeback at any time against American and British supply lines.

Knox said that the collapse of Italian resistance and the surrender of the Italian fleet had greatly improved the Allied ship-

Blazing Town Is Funeral Pyre For German Hopes Of Halting Reds

KIEV THREAT MOUNTING

Allied Airmen Kindled Great Fire At Jap Base—Big Guns Roar In Italy

By International News Service
Hitler's hordes applied the torch to still another city that he must evacuate and the important White Russian communication center of Gomel today became a funeral pyre for German hopes of stemming the Soviet forces short of the Polish border.

As units of the triumphant Red army battered their way into the suburbs of the city, the Germans prepared to evacuate the important stronghold on the banks of the Sozh river. Just as in Naples, which was set afire by the enemy as Anglo-American forces approached that ancient city, Hitler's sappers blasted and burned Gomel.

Fall of the town became imminent when Soviet troops captured Novobelitsa, vital rail junction just across the river. The Red army controlled the entire south bank of the Sozh river, while other Russian forces extended their recently-won bridgeheads across the mighty Dnieper river.

In forging ahead on the west bank of the Dnieper, Stalin's soldiers increased the threat to Kiev, third largest Russian city which is still held by the Germans. London reports said the enemy was evacuating this important Nazi bastion, too, but this was not immediately confirmed by the Soviet high command.

Jap Base Burning

Another enemy base was a flaming ruin today, but it was not self-inflicted devastation. On the contrary, the fires kindled at Macassar, Jap oil supply base on Celebes island in the Dutch East Indies, were set by American bombers.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said four-motored Liberators had made their fourth 2,400-mile round trip to pound the port with 25 tons of high explosives.

Returning airmen said they could see fires 90 miles from the targets, which included fuel tanks and warehouses near the Juliana and Wilhelmiana wharves and Fort Rotterdam. A half-dozen other Jap targets throughout the islands north and east of Australia were blasted by Allied airmen, while the enemy made two ineffectual raids against our positions in New Guinea.

Aussies Advance

The Allied positions on this latter island were improved as Australian jungle troops forced a further Jap retreat toward Madag. Surging up the Ramu valley, the Aussies pressed to within 40 miles of that enemy stronghold.

MacArthur said the enemy still "continues to withdraw to the north."

Timor, half-Dutch and half-Portuguese island north of Australia, attracted much interest in world-wide diplomatic circles. It was reported to be the crux of Jap-Portuguese tension, the Lisbon reportedly seeking to effect a Jap withdrawal from the island occupied early in 1942.

It wasn't that he got angry with her, she said. He choked and otherwise mauled her or even had her take the role of a corpse deliriously in a spirit of scientific research, she told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. But that didn't make the situation any less painful, she added.

Judge Sabath gave her a divorce which her husband, now a corporal in the army, did not oppose.

Taps sounded Tuesday afternoon for Lieutenant Jack Goodchild, one of Circleville's prominent and popular youths.

As full military funeral services were being conducted in the Methodist church it was revealed that the flight instructor, killed last Friday in a collision between two planes, died a hero.

Lieutenant Clell Lambert of Ventura, Cal., who said he was Lieutenant Goodchild's first pupil and that on his recommendation had been named an instructor himself, informed the flyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Goodchild, Watt street, that he had been instructed by his superiors at Orlando army air base, Orlando, Fla., to inform them that the 19-year-old aviator had given his life to save that of a student flyer. The student, Lieutenant Lawrence Antill of Pittsfield, Maine, was the only survivor of the two plane crash.

Likewise in a slump is the wheat crop, expected as of October 1 to be 14.8 percent below last year's production, and oats, 15 percent under the last year figure.

During September, milk production declined "somewhat more rapidly than usual," the department stated, with total output set at 9,300,000,000 pounds—about 2½ percent short of the same month a year ago. Contributing factors were labor and feed shortages.

It was indicated there will be serious shortages of apples, peaches and pears the rest of the year due to poor weather conditions and other factors. Declines in this year's crop as compared with 1942 included: apples 38,540,000 bushels; peaches 37 percent; pears 23 percent.

This picture was brightened by the fact that there will be a 13 percent boost in the citrus fruit crop this year—oranges and grapefruit particularly.

NAZIS DIVIDED ON JUST HOW TO SEEK PEACE

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The German leaders today were reported unable to decide with which of the Allies they ought to try to negotiate a separate peace.

Reuter, quoting a Berne dispatch to the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet, said the Nazi officials recently held a conference for this purpose. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler were said to have demanded a separate peace with America and Great Britain, but No. 2 Nazi Hermann Goering and other high-ranking army officers urged such a step with Russia.

Airmen To Beat Life Out of Huns

Churchill Sounds Praise Of Yankees For Hastening Day Of Victory

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today that the American and British air forces will "inexorably beat the life out of industrial Germany and thus hasten the day of final victory."

In a message to Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding United States forces in the European theatre, the premier extended his war cabinet's congratulations and thanks for the "magnificent achievements" of the U. S. Eighth Army Force. Churchill particularly lauded the group's battles over Germany in recent days, which culminated in last week's successes.

"I am confident," the prime minister said, "that with the ever-growing power of the Eight Air Force striking alternate blows with the RAF bomber command, we will together inexorably beat the life out of industrial Germany and thus hasten the day of final victory."

Churchill pointed out that the American airmen got to their targets despite heavy enemy opposition and wrought extensive devastation upon Nazi military and industrial installations. He declared: "In broad daylight, the crews of your bombers fought their way through the strongest defense the enemy could bring against them. They ranged the length and breadth of Germany, striking with deadly accuracy at many of the most important hostile industrial installations and ports."

"Your fighters and bombers inflicted serious losses on the German air force and by forcing the enemy to weaken his other fronts contributed notably to the success of Allied arms everywhere."

The war cabinet also congratulated the American ground crews, "without whose technical skill and labor these feats of arms would not be possible."

BOSTON LOWELL FACES TERM AS DRAFT DODGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Robert Traill Spence Lowell, Jr., "one of the Boston Lowells," awaits sentence tomorrow as a draft dodger. He faces a possible five years in jail and $10,000 fine.

Lowell, who is 26, instead of appearing for induction September 8 wrote President Roosevelt that he was opposed to war. He is a son of a retired navy commander and a cousin of A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard.

The Allied positions on this latter island were improved as Australian jungle troops forced a further Jap retreat toward Madang. Surging up the Ramu valley, the Aussies pressed to within 40 miles of that enemy stronghold.

MacArthur said the enemy still "continues to withdraw to the north."

Timor, half-Dutch and half-Portuguese island north of Australia, attracted much interest in world-wide diplomatic circles. It was reported to be the crux of Jap-Portuguese tension, the Lisbon reportedly seeking to effect a Jap withdrawal from the island occupied early in 1942.

HUSBAND USES WIFE FOR TESTS AND SHE SUES

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Her husband, Charles, was such an avid reader of detective and mystery yarns that he insisted on testing out the fictional descriptions of judo, mayhem, and other forms of violence on her, Mrs. Josephine Skrodenis, 25, declared today.

It wasn't that he got angry with her, she said. He choked and otherwise mauled her or even had her take the role of a corpse delict solely in a spirit of scientific research, she told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. But that didn't make the situation any less painful, she added.

Judge Sabath gave her a divorce which her husband, now a corporal in the army, did not oppose.

NAZIS PREPARE FOR EVACUATION OF VITAL CITY

Blazing Town Is Funeral Pyre For German Hopes Of Halting Reds

KIEV THREAT MOUNTING

Allied Airmen Kindle Great Fire At Jap Base—Big Guns Roar In Italy

By International News Service
Hitler's hordes applied the torch to still another city that he must evacuate and the important White Russian communication center of Gomel today became a funeral pyre for German hopes of stemming the Soviet forces short of the Polish border.

As units of the triumphant Red army battered their way into the suburbs of the city, the Germans prepared to evacuate the important stronghold on the banks of the Sozh river. Just as in Naples, which was set afire by the enemy as Anglo-American forces approached that ancient city, Hitler's sappers blasted and burned Gomel.

Fall of the town became imminent when Soviet troops captured Novobeltza, vital rail junction just across the river. The Red army controlled the entire south bank of the Sozh river, while other Russian forces extended their recently won bridgeheads across the mighty Dnieper river.

In forging ahead on the west bank of the Dnieper, Stalin's soldiers increased the threat to Kiev, third largest Russian city, which is still held by the Germans. London reports said the enemy was evacuating this important Nazi bastion, too, but this was not immediately confirmed by the Soviet high command.

Jap Base Burning

Another enemy base was a flaming ruin today, but it was not self-inflicted devastation. On the contrary, the fires kindled at Macassar, Jap oil supply base on Celebes island in the Dutch East Indies, were set by American bombers.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said four-motored Liberators had made their fourth 2,400-mile round trip to pound the port with 25 tons of high explosives.

Returning airmen said they could see fires 90 miles from the targets, which included fuel tanks and warehouses near the Juliana and Wilhelmina wharves and Fort Rotterdam. A half-dozen other Jap targets throughout the islands north and east of Australia were blasted by Allied airmen, while the enemy made two ineffectual raids against our positions in New Guinea.

Aussies Advance

The Allied positions on this latter island were improved as Australian jungle troops forced a further Jap retreat toward Madang. Surging up the Ramu valley, the Aussies pressed to within 40 miles of that enemy stronghold.

MacArthur said the enemy still "continues to withdraw to the north."

to report sick on threats of "getting your head knocked off."

As the strike continued to spread, truck line operators appealed to congressmen in the Southeast to seek congressional action in an effort to halt the strike.

Union leaders in the Southeast awaited word from Daniel J. Tobin, international president of the teamsters union who now is attending the AFL convention at Boston. Tobin was advised by WLB Chairman William H. Davis that a continuance of the strike would only act in delaying a decision by the board.

Hands Off Policy

The Fourth Service Command and the Eighth Naval District in the strike-affected area announced they would maintain a "hands off" policy for the present.

Hector Cawthorn, secretary-treasurer of local 728 in Atlanta, declared that high ranking Army and Navy officials had approached him regarding a possible movement of freight by Army and Navy trucks. He said he assured military authorities the union men would cooperate with the services.

The charge of bad faith on the part of the truck line operators was made in Birmingham by Robert Borden, international representative of the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers union, who asserted the owners were in a conspiracy to wreck the drivers' union.

"The trouble is lack of decision on the part of the War Labor Board in acting on a petition filed November 15, 1942," Borden said. Borden added that Landis O'Brien, operators' representative on the WLB has frustrated a settlement by refusing to meet to pass on the drivers' petition.

P. H. Hall, business manager of the Atlanta group, said the strike was unauthorized, but that the men quit because the operators had turned down a proposal which would have raised wages from $30.24 to $39.20 weekly pending a WLB ruling.

civil defense units had carried out various exercises over the week end.

Meanwhile the Nazis took cognizance of unsubstantiated reports that Allied warships were patrolling the waters off the Portuguese Azores islands by asserting the belief that Portugal "will offer very stiff resistance to a foreign power attempting to lay hands on the Azores."

The German-operated Paris radio took it on itself to speak for Japan in the current crisis.

"Tokyo," said Paris, "officially denies Portugal has demanded the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Timor."

Timor, part-Dutch and part-Portuguese island in the southwest Pacific, was taken over by the Nipponese early in 1942 when Tokyo's forces headed toward Australia.

Exchange Telegraph said the Budapest radio reported that Premier Antonio Salazar again received the Japanese minister to Portugal yesterday after which all members of the Portuguese government met.

A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express said the Germans believe "there may be some truth in the alarming reports arriving from Portugal."

The Germans were said to consider it significant that foreign military attaches have not been invited to view Portuguese army maneuvers.

RETURN SLIGHT ON LEND-LEASE

cash for products in Dutch and British Guiana, and other parts of the British empire.

4. Valuation of reverse lend-lease may include value of experience gained by British engineers during the war before the United States entered it.

Stettinius said that reverse lend-lease given by Russia is being credited against an advance by the defense supplies corporation.

Russia Would Pay

He said: "The Soviet government has expressed its desire to give us reverse lend-lease to the fullest extent possible, but the volume and nature of such aid is limited by the weight of Russia's own requirements and by the absence of American forces in areas which can be supplied by Russia. Thus far, therefore, such aid has been confined to repair, supply and servicing of our vessels in Russian ports.

"While we have obtained certain raw materials from Russia, there is a contractual obligation that the value of these shall be credited against an advance by the defense supplies corporation and it will not be possible to credit such shipments as reciprocal aid until this obligation has been discharged."

Speaking of valuation of Allied aid to this country, Stettinius said:

Reciprocal Aid

"Moreover there are many types of reciprocal aid that are of such intangible character that it is impossible to 'value' them. It is impossible to measure in dollars either the cost to the British or the value to us, for example, of British engineering and design of weapons based on two years of combat experience gained before we entered the war. . . no estimate can be made of the number of American lives that have been saved by equipping our forces with those improved weapons.

"Another difficulty is involved in expressing a 'value' (in terms of dollars) even for items the cost of which is known. Thus, a Spitfire plane costs, in terms of the official exchange rate, only about one-half that of the American plane.

"Is the value of the Spitfire, therefore, only one-half that of the American plane. One dollar will buy about three times the quantity of butter in New Zealand than it will buy in the United States. On what basis are we to value the butter received from New Zealand? On the other hand, there are some items which cost more in terms of dollars in England than the United States."

Process Explained

In explaining why the United States has paid cash for raw materials from the British empire, Stettinius said:

"With respect to the British empire, the overall financial condition of the empire has thus far required that these purchases be for cash. Our purchases of bauxite from British Guiana, for example, have been cash transactions for this reason. However, in view of changed circumstances we are now negotiating with the British with a view to obtaining under reverse lend-lease those raw materials which are procured by agencies of the United States government."

He said that India has furnished fifty-five million dollars of reverse lend-lease while the value of aid by Australia is placed at $198,000,000 in American exchange. At the time the report was written U. S. aid to Australia totaled $552,000,000.

Ellender criticized the intimation that services of British engineers and their war experience would be charged against the United States as reverse lend-lease.

He said that a study made by him indicated that within another year the total national debt of the United States will be more than both that of England and Russia and the Axis powers.

Lieutenant (j. g.) Horace W. Gilmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore, South Court street, took part in landing operations which preceded the heavy fighting for possession of Salerno, key Italian coastal city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore received a letter Monday from their son, their first in five weeks, which said he was well.

News of Italy's surrender to the Allies was received on young Gilmore's boat just as landing operations were being started.

The officer said he would send more information on the Salerno invasion after he returns to his North African base.

time when the Nazis can be hurt most.

They must fear both. They have the same price on the heads of Mikhailovitch and partisan leader Gen. Josip Broz (Tito), 8,500 pound sterling ($34,000), and they have frequently tried to play one against the other in Yugoslavia, as well as by propaganda throughout the world. According to some reports, the Nazis have even sought to do so by broadcasting bogus Yugoslav communiques.

Although Mikhailovitch appears presently to be outshone by the partisans, there is no reason to believe his efforts will not as effectively help the Allies with the Balkans. According to best information, Mikhailovitch's policy has been to keep a well-trained force in readiness for the invasion, not to fritter away his troops in minor skirmishes.

WORKERS HELP CUT STAFF

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. — Civilian workers have been reduced 15 percent at Camp Shelby, according to a report made by public relations officers. Officials credited the workers themselves with making the reduction by simplifying office procedure. The cut means savings in payrolls as well as making possible revealing of competent personnel to other war agencies in urgent need, officials asserted.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Half-Tracks

More than 50,000 scout cars and other combat vehicles have been shipped from American factories to our armed forces to aid in the speedy defeat of the Axis powers. One half-track armored scout car costs about $9,000. Figure it out yourself and you will see we will have to buy more and more War Bonds to keep the supply line intact.

Our forces are on the move beyond the Pacific and beyond the Atlantic, to report sick on threats of "getting your head knocked off."

As the strike continued to spread, truck line operators appealed to congressmen in the Southeast to seek congressional action in an effort to halt the strike.

Union leaders in the Southeast awaited word from Daniel J. Tobin, international president of the teamsters union who now is attending the AFL convention at Boston. Tobin was advised by WLB Chairman William H. Davis that a continuance of the strike would only act in delaying a decision by the board.

Hands Off Policy

The Fourth Service Command and the Eighth Naval District in the strike-affected area announced they would maintain a "hands off" policy for the present.

Hector Cawthon, secretary-treasurer of local 728 in Atlanta, declared that high ranking Army and Navy officials had approached him regarding a possible movement of freight by Army and Navy trucks. He said he assured military authorities the union men would cooperate with the services.

The charge of bad faith on the part of the truck line operators was made in Birmingham by Robert Borden, international representative of the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers union, who asserted the owners were in a conspiracy to wreck the drivers' union.

"The trouble is lack of decision on the part of the War Labor Board in acting on a petition filed November 15, 1942," Borden said. Borden added that Landis O'Brien, operators' representative on the WLB has frustrated a settlement by refusing to meet to pass on the drivers' petition.

P. H. Hall, business manager of the Atlanta group, said the strike was unauthorized, but that the men quit because the operators had turned down a proposal which would have raised wages from $30.24 to $39.20 weekly pending a WLB ruling.

civil defense units had carried out various exercises over the week end.

Meanwhile the Nazis took cognizance of unsubstantiated reports that Allied warships were patrolling the waters off the Portuguese Azores islands by asserting the belief that Portugal "will offer very stiff resistance to a foreign power attempting to lay hands on the Azores."

The German-operated Paris radio took it on itself to speak for Japan in the current crisis.

"Tokyo," said Radio Paris, "officially denies Portugal has demanded the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Timor."

Timor, part-Dutch and part-Portuguese island in the southwest Pacific, was taken over by the Nipponese early in 1942 when Tojo's forces headed toward Australia.

Exchange Telegraph said the Budapest radio reported that Premier Antonio Salazar again received the Japanese minister to Portugal yesterday after which all members of the Portuguese government met.

A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express said the Germans believe "there may be some truth in the alarming reports arriving from Portugal."

The Germans were said to consider it significant that foreign military attaches have not been invited to view Portuguese army maneuvers.

In Italy, steady artillery and patrol activity was reported by the Algiers radio during the last 24 hours. Rains which have swollen the Volturno river added to the problem confronting the Allied armies of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, but it was believed that the American leader would soon be in a position to hurl his troops across the stream. The Fifth Army already holds the south shore from the sea to Capua, and some Anglo-American patrols were operating on the German-held north bank.

Yugoslav patriots were officially reported to have captured the town of Slankamen on the Danube river near Novisad, and other Guerrilla groups attacked Nazi rail communications on the main line from Zagreb to Belgrade and in Croatia.

The Exchange Telegraph said German occupation of the Dodecanese island of Kos was almost complete, after most of the British troops that had briefly wrested the island from the Axis escaped.

cash for products in Dutch and British Guiana, and other parts of the British empire.

4. Valuation of reverse lend-lease may include value of experience gained by British engineers during the war before the United States entered it.

Stettinius said that reverse lend-lease given by Russia is being credited against an advance by the defense supplies corporation.

Russia Would Pay

He said: "The Soviet government has expressed its desire to give us reverse lend-lease to the fullest extent possible, but the volume and nature of such aid is limited by the weight of Russia's own requirements and by the absence of American forces in areas which can be supplied by Russia. Thus far, therefore, such aid has been confined to repair, supply and servicing of our vessels in Russian ports.

"While we have obtained certain raw materials from Russia, there is a contractual obligation that the value of these shall be credited against an advance by the defense supplies corporation and it will not be possible to credit such shipments as reciprocal aid until this obligation has been discharged."

Speaking of valuation of Allied aid to this country, Stettinius said:

Reciprocal Aid

"Moreover there are many types of reciprocal aid that are of such intangible character that it is impossible to 'value' them. It is impossible to measure in dollars either the cost to the British or the value to us, for example, of British engineering and design of weapons based on two years of combat experience gained before we entered the war. . . no estimate can be made of the number of American lives that have been saved by equipping our forces with those improved weapons.

"Another difficulty is involved in expressing a 'value' (in terms of dollars) even for items the cost of which is known. Thus, a Spitfire plane costs, in terms of the official exchange rate, only about one-half that of the American plane.

"Is the value of the Spitfire, therefore, only one-half that of the American plane. One dollar will buy about three times the quantity of butter in New Zealand than it will buy in the United States. On what basis are we to value the butter received from New Zealand? On the other hand, there are some items which cost more in terms of dollars in England than in the United States."

Process Explained

In explaining why the United States has paid cash for raw materials from the British empire, Stettinius said:

"With respect to the British empire, the overall financial condition of the empire has thus far required that these purchases be for cash. Our purchases of bauxite from British Guiana, for example, have been cash transactions for this reason. However, in view of changed circumstances we are now negotiating with the British with a view to obtaining under reverse lend-lease those raw materials which are procured by agencies of the United States government."

He said that India has furnished fifty-five million dollars of reverse lend-lease while the value of aid by Australia is placed at $196,000,000 in American exchange. At the time the report

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore received a letter Monday from their son, their first in five weeks, which said he was well.

News of Italy's surrender to the Allies was received on young Gilmore's boat just as landing operations were being started.

The officer said he would send more information on the Salerno invasion after he returns to his North African base.

time when the Nazis can be hurt most.

They must fear both. They have the same price on the heads of Mikhailovitch and partisan leader Gen. Josip Broz (Tito), $500,000 sterling ($34,000), and they have frequently tried to play one against the other in Yugoslavia, as well as by propaganda throughout the world. According to some reports, the Nazis have even sought to do so by broadcasting bogus Yugoslav communiques.

Although Mikhailovitch appears presently to be outshone by the partisans, there is no reason to believe his efforts will not as effectively help the Allies with the Balkans. According to best information, Mikhailovitch's policy has been to keep a well-trained force in readiness for the invasion, not to fritter away his troops in minor skirmishes.

DRAFTEES MUST REPORT EARLY, BOARD WARNS

Pickaway county Selective Service office today reminded members of its contingent leaving later in the week to be certain to report at the draft office not later than 6:30 a. m., Circleville time. It is important that all be present at that time since the buses on which the contingent will leave must travel according to schedule.

Under Selective Service censorship rules, the local office is not permitted to publish the date for the contingent to leave the city until after the group has started its trip to the induction center.

The October contingent will clean up the entire pool of available husbands who have wives only as dependents. Some 18-year-olds will be sent up, and about half a dozen married men who also have children will be sent. The board pointed out that in the latter group were men who had been advised to get into deferable occupations before an April 1 deadline set up by the national Selective Service office.

SERVICE SCHOOL TESTS SLATED FOR NOVEMBER 9

Second qualifying test for the Army specialized training program and the Navy college program V-12 will be given Tuesday, November 9, at Circleville high school. J. Wray Henry, Circleville principal, will be in charge of the examination locally.

A similar test will be conducted throughout the country on the same day.

A pamphlet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the high school. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by May 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known to Mr. Henry so necessary test supplies may be ordered.

The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training and all qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service performance, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army specialized training program and the Navy college program enable students to continue academic training at government expense following induction into armed services. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the Army or the Navy.

Those selected for the Army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the Navy program, after selection by the office of naval officer procurement, will be detailed directly to college. Students who attend college under either of the programs will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books and uniforms, will be paid by the Army or the Navy.

FAYETTE COUNTY LAGS BEHIND IN BOND CAMPAIGN

Fayette county, of which Washington C. H. is the county seat, is the only county in the south central Ohio area which has not yet passed its quota for the Third War Loan drive. The county is not included in same Federal Reserve district in which Pickaway county is placed, all counties in this district having gone over the top.

Last figures announced from Washington C. H. showed the county to be $111,870 behind its goal. Total sales up to Monday were $906,129.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Clifford Caplinger, injured last week when he was run over by a gravel truck, died Monday in Chillicothe hospital. He lived in Chillicothe. Mr. Caplinger was a native of Ross county, and among survivors is a sister, Mrs. Alice Maul of Kingston. He also leaves a widow and a brother.

By GLENN NEVILLE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—One morning a fleet of Navy tankers showed up off a gulf coast port riding high, light and empty. They wanted to load—"quick." Gasoline, fuel oil, lubricants, and that super-fuel for bombers and fighters which is called high-octane gasoline.

If the petroleum industry had taken a leaf from the book of the waterfront merchants of oldtime New York, it might have had watchers posted at high points to cry the news of the approaching ships.

But it didn't, and therefore was without advance notice of arrival. Say there were 15 tankers in this fleet.

If they were ships of the "old fleet," capacity 80,000 barrels, they would hold a total of 1,200,000 barrels; if of the "new fleet"—our newly built wartime tankers—their unit capacity would be 120,000, and their total, 1,800,000.

In either event, the total amount demanded without notice by the unheeded fleet would represent literally "oceans of oil"; 1,200,000 barrels is more than one-fourth of the whole country's daily production; 1,800,000 barrels is nearly a half.

Typical Case

The case is typical. The petroleum industry filed the order!

But it had no chance for planning, no chance to bring up reserves to compensate for the tanker fleet's cargo, no chance to change the flow of pipelines and readjust the production schedules of refineries, things that cannot be accomplished in a moment.

The instance of the Gulf port tanker fleet is not one of inefficiency or shortsightedness. It is an illustration of the great impossibility in the wartime story of petroleum—the demands of the armed forces.

The oil men, hundreds of whom are giving their time in the service of their country without pay, assert with justice that it is difficult to form a nationwide, much less a worldwide, oil program without knowing how much the Army and Navy want and where they want it.

But the military replies that the information—how much and where—is such a vital secret, such a dead tip-off to planned offensives, that it cannot be shared with anyone out of uniform.

This is responsible for the fact that the wartime story of petroleum has been reported to the American ringside radio announcer detailing the most torrid moments of a prizefight:

"He's down! He's up! Down again! Up again!"

Gas rationing was first announced as a measure to save rubber, not gasoline. The next reason given was the transportation bottleneck. Currently the explanation is stark, critical shortages.

Strangely enough, the explanations are or were true.

Rubber was the critical material when gas rationing came upon us. Now transportation has been greatly eased.

The U-boat is being conquered by multiple counter-measures, most effective of which is air convoy.

The petroleum industry, working hand-in-glove with the self-styled curmudgeon, Harold L. Ickes, petroleum administrator for war, and Joseph Eastman, head of the Office of Defense Transportation, has accomplished a virtual American miracle in substituting for the war commandeered tanker fleet other means of transport—railroad tank cars, tank trucks, pipelines, barges.

"Big Inch," the 24-inch pipeline from Longview, Tex., to Norris City, Ill., to Philadelphia and New York harbor, is completed and delivering 300,000 barrels of crude oil a day—2,100,000 a week—to east coast refineries.

"Big Inch" is 1,388 miles of American ingenuity, grit, guts and the will to get things done.

It is roughly paralleled by "Little Inch," a 20-inch line from Houston, Tex., to New York harbor, which will lay down, not crude, but finished petroleum products at the rate of 200,000 barrels a day.

BUT—there are shortages—AND—

The civilian, particularly he in the "famine" area of the eastern seaboard, and soon, probably, throughout the nation, cannot expect any return to the lush "fill 'er up" gasoline conditions of peacetime.

The day of the automobile as the distinguishing luxury of American life is over for the duration.

The civilian whose home is oil heated will not freeze. His situation will be about the same as last year.

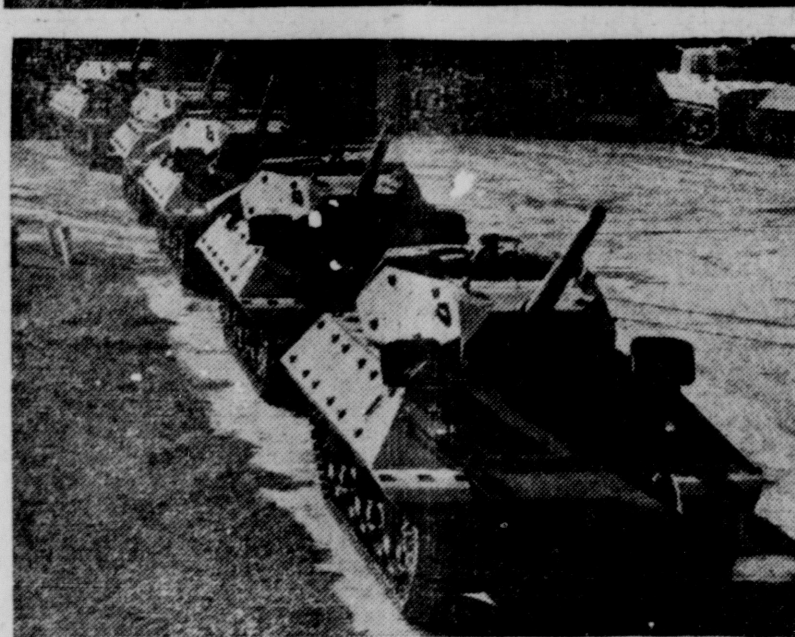

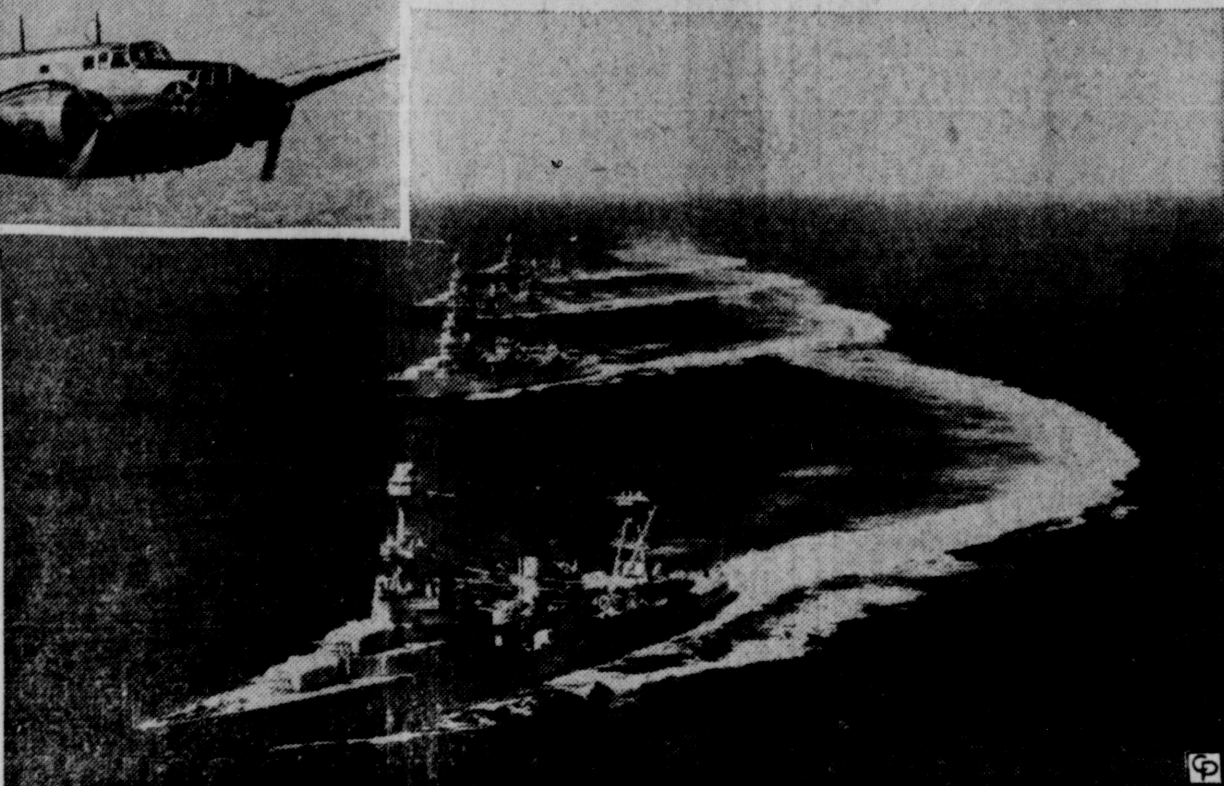

And remember this: No matter what optimistic statements are made by what government agency, the civilian's status is always subject to change.

More than 40,000 women are part of the civilian force manning the U. S. Army's storage deposits.

There is a tide in the affairs of men that throws a lot of queer fish up on the beach.

U. S. Planes, Ships Never Go Thirsty

Ickes, Eastman and Oil Industry Work Miracle to Meet War's Fuel Demands

FIRST SERVED—Uncle Sam's warplanes, warships, tanks and other motorized vehicles of war have first claim on gasoline and oil supplies.

That is, the tanks of Flying Fortresses and Liberators will not go thirsty even if it means that another million autos must be put up on blocks in another million garages.

The bunkers of our destroyers, cruisers and battleships will be fed even if it means another million civilians will have to close off another million rooms in another million oil-heated homes.

Either increasing success or temporary setback on the military fronts quickens the cry for more oil, more gasoline.

Tunisia was a great victory, a great shock to the Axis.

It was also a pleasant shock to our side.

For, unexpectedly and out of time, the vital opportunity for the invasion of Sicily lay open to us. Now, with Sicily quickly won, Italy lies before us.

Gulps Up Oil

Tremendous reserves have to be built up.

The mechanized division of this war goes into battle with equipment totaling 187,000 horsepower; its counterpart in World War I had a horsepower of 4,000.

One battleship on one short cruise burns 1,000,000 gallons of oil.

One two-engined bomber burns five and one-half barrels an hour; 1,000 such bombers, flying for seven hours and 15 minutes, would burn up 40,000 barrels of fuel—an amount equal to the total daily United States production of 100-octane gasoline two years ago.

These are only bare indications of modern war's capacity to gulp up oil. And they are indications based upon present facts. The agenda for the future includes the fueling of our projected 185,000 fighting aircraft, 18,000,000 tons of merchant shipping, the world's largest navy, hundreds of thousands of tanks, trucks, half-tracks, jeeps, etc.

The civilian will get what's left at the bottom of the barrel—no more—no matter what any politician in Washington says!

GIRLS' NIGHT PROGRAM TO BE FAIR FEATURE

One of the highlight events of the Junior Fair, at least so far as girls of the county are concerned, is the Girls' Night program Thursday, October 21, in Memorial Hall.

Each 4-H club girl is being urged to attend the Thursday evening program and to take her parents and her friends with her.

Several team demonstrations are scheduled, including Food, Clothing, Dairy and First Aid Clubs.

Each girl who has made a dress this year as a project will be eligible to compete in the dress review. Premiums are being given for complete costumes, dress up dresses, dresses for school, street and business and dresses for home and play.

Aprons made by the girls will be put in the dress review with the J. C. Penny Co. awarding each winner an amount in War Bonds equal to the cash premium she wins.

Girls' 4-H club exhibits will be in the Lutz-Yates garage room, East Franklin street, with each club assigned a four by five booth. The display may be put in Wednesday afternoon or evening or Thursday morning before 10 o'clock. They may be removed after 3 p. m. Saturday.

There will be awards for the best booth display in each department.

NURSING CLASS BEING FORMED BY RED CROSS

The new Red Cross Home Nursing class being organized by the Pickaway county chapter covers many things which go to make up a healthy home and community.

Housewives are taught to recognize symptoms of illness and the proper care of communicable diseases. They are also given information concerning how to administer medicines and treatments prescribed by the doctor. Persons taking the course are also taught how to take care of invalids.

Mrs. Harry Heffner, chairman of the Red Cross Home Nursing program, said Tuesday that the national organization's quota for home nursing graduations is 1,000,000 for 1943. This means that one person in each home will be trained for the work if the quota is to be filled.

Persons interested in registering for the course should call Mrs. Heffner, Phone No. 792.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

WILLOUGHBY, O.—Combating absenteeism at the Ohio Rubber Co., the management has set up a free tire inspection service for employees so that autos can be checked while workers are on the job. A report is given to the workers so that they may take their cars to a service station of their own choosing.

WILLKIE PLANS BALLOT TEST FAIR FEATURE IN WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 12—Wendell L. Willkie will spend four days in Wisconsin next month testing the sentiment for him as a candidate for the 1944 Republican presidential nomination, it was announced today.

John E. Dickinson, chairman of the Washington county Republican committee, said Willkie would be in the state from November 11 to 14, inclusive and that announcement of the visit had been authorized by Willkie's New York office.

Dickinson recently announced his support of Willkie for the nomination.

CITY SCHOOLS TO COOPERATE IN PAPER DRIVE

Full cooperation of Circleville schools in a waste paper salvage program was pledged Tuesday when Dan McClain, salvage committee chairman, and Vernon Hawkes of the Container Corporation met with Frank Fischer, school superintendent, and principals of all the city buildings.

The scrap paper drive will be conducted the third Wednesday of every month, starting October 20. Prior to the October 20 date school pupils are urged to take all waste paper, magazines and other materials which can be used to their schools. The salvaged paper and magazines will be picked up there.

Mr. McClain said that the same date will be used for collection of all other salvaged goods, including metals, cans and fats.

All proceeds of the paper collection will be turned over to the schools for whatever purpose they wish.

It is urged that all paper be tied in bundles so it may be more easily handled.

The paper industry is stressing the need for full cooperation in the program, pointing out that its supply of paper is becoming small and smaller.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Sergeant Emil Stonerock, 977th bomber training squadron, DAAF, Deming, New Mexico, has returned to his station after a furlough at his home near Williamsport.

Corporal William McClarren of Camp Maxey, Texas, is home for a 10-day furlough with his mother, Mrs. Leah McClarren Thompson and his sister, Miss Dorothy McClarren. His mother is recovering after a serious illness at her home, 137 Walnut street.

Corporal Fred A. Smith, who is recovering from wounds suffered in fighting on Munda, would greatly appreciate mail. His address is ASN 35002467, Hoff general hospital, Santa Barbara, Cal., Ward 12.

New address of Lieutenant Lorin N. Hinton of Salt Creek township is 477th bomber squadron, Barksdale field, Shreveport, Louisiana.

Sergeant David Steinhauser, who has been in service in the Canal Zone, is home for a short furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Steinhauser, West Mound street.

Mrs. Floyd Russell, 369 Weldon avenue, has received a V-mail letter from her brother, Corporal James C. Williams, telling of his safe arrival overseas. He is in Australia. Williams' mail goes to him at ASN 35615545, APO 4672, care of postmaster, San Francisco, Cal.

SERVICE SCHOOL TESTS SLATED FOR NOVEMBER 9

Second qualifying test for the Army specialized training program and the Navy college program V-12 will be given Tuesday, November 9, at Circleville high school. J. Wray Henry, Circleville principal, will be in charge of the examination locally.

A similar test will be conducted throughout the country on the same day.

A pamphlet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the high school. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by May 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known to Mr. Henry so necessary test supplies may be ordered.

The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training and all qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service performance, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army specialized training program and the Navy college program enable students to continue academic training at government expense following induction into armed services. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the Army or the Navy.

Those selected for the Army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the Navy program, after selection by the office of naval officer procurement, will be detailed directly to college. Students who attend college under either of the programs will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books and uniforms, will be paid by the Army or the Navy.

FAYETTE COUNTY LAGS BEHIND IN BOND CAMPAIGN

Fayette county, of which Washington C. H. is the county seat, is the only county in the south central Ohio area which has not yet passed its quota for the Third War Loan drive. The county is not included in same Federal Reserve district in which Pickaway county is placed, all counties in this district having gone over the top.

Last figures announced from Washington C. H. showed the county to be $111,870 behind its goal. Total sales up to Monday were $906,129.

By GLENN NEVILLE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—One morning a fleet of Navy tankers showed up off a gulf coast port riding high, light and empty. They wanted to load—"quick." Gasoline, fuel oil, lubricants, and that super-fuel which is called high-octane gasoline.

If the petroleum industry had taken a leaf from the book of the waterfront merchants of oldtime New York, it might have had watchers posted at high points to cry the news of the approaching ships.

But it didn't, and therefore was without advance notice of arrival. Say there were 15 tankers in this fleet.

If they were ships of the "old fleet," capacity 80,000 barrels, they would hold a total of 1,200,000 barrels; if of the "new fleet"—our newly built wartime tankers—their unit capacity would be 120,000, and their total, 1,800,000.

In either event, the total amount demanded without notice by the unheralded fleet would represent literally "oceans of oil"; 1,200,000 barrels is more than one-fourth of the whole country's daily production; 1,800,000 barrels is nearly a half.

Typical Case
The case is typical. The petroleum industry filled the order! But it had no chance for planning, no chance to bring up reserves to compensate for the tanker fleet's cargo, no chance to change the flow of pipelines and re-adjust the production schedules of refineries, things that cannot be accomplished in a moment.

The instance of the Gulf port tanker fleet is not one of inefficiency or shortsightedness. It is an illustration of the great impendence in the wartime story of petroleum—the demands of the armed forces.

The oil men, hundreds of whom are giving their time in the service of their country without pay, assert with justice that it is difficult to form a nationwide, much less a worldwide, oil program without knowing how much the Army and Navy want and where they want it.

But the military replies that the information—how much and where—is such a vital secret, and a dead tip-off to planned offensives, that it cannot be shared with anyone out of uniform.

This is responsible for the fact that the wartime story of petroleum has been reported to the American ringside radio announcer detailing the most torrid moments of a prizefight:

"He's down! He's up! Down again! Up again!"
Gas rationing was first announced as a measure to save rubber, not gasoline. The next reason given was the transportation bottleneck or shortsightedness. It is an illustration of the great impendence in the wartime story of petroleum—the demands of the armed forces.

WAKING UP

THERE are some encouraging signs of life lately in the United States senate. It begins to blink its eyes and sit up and look around. Partly this awakening may come from a dawning realization that there is going to be an election next year. There is some stimulation also in the return of the senatorial exploring expedition, which has been abroad and felt stirrings of life in the outer world.

There is a filip, too, in the overwhelming vote recently cast by the house of representatives on the Fulbright resolution, in favor of cooperation with the aforesaid world. That was something to make dry bones rattle, in spite of the normal indifference of the senate to the vagaries of the lower house.

Rubbing its eyes and looking around, and noting the acclaim given by the nation to that resolution, observant senators vaguely recalled something very similar, suggested in their own branch of government more than half a year ago. They thought they had put that baby to sleep, but it has been plumped into their laps, livelier than ever. And the public cheers for the kid instead of dozing with the senate.

It is a terrible situation. The most deliberate body on earth has heretofore taken the initiative in such disturbing matters, and now it finds that all it has is a referendum.

RELIGION IN RUSSIA

CAN it be that the supposedly "Godless Reds" are turning religious again? Color has nothing to do with such a matter, but human nature has a great deal. And there certainly are signs not exactly of a religious "revival" in Russia, but a restoration of religious interest and tolerance.

From that may come a new development of religious faith and practice in Russia, slow but strong. In pre-revolutionary times, when left to their own devices, the Russians were very religious. Their dense ignorance, however, led the masses into lamentable superstition, under corrupt and ignorant leaders. There is less danger of such abuses now, with a more literate and intelligent nation. The Russians seem to be slowly growing modern in their general thinking, as they have been doing in their industry and national defense.

The worst thing about these pesky Japs is that, having no sense of time, they don't know when to quit.

When Hitler brags about his "Fortress Europe," the Allies can retort with "A mighty fortress is our God."

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up earlier than usual and soon away to the plant to scan the morning prints for overnight happenings. Nothing of importance, so turned to the day's stint. Spend practically all day at desk now, getting out only on occasion. Greatly miss my former daily strolls in and out of the places of trade. Well, this is war.

There goes Willard Timmons, who because of the meat shortage or something went duck hunting for the first time. Luther Bower and Emmett Morgan saw him blaze away at a bird with both barrels. "What kind of a duck was that, anyway?" asked Timmons. His "duck" was a kingfisher.

Jim Sweeting dropped in to ask how I liked the hills Sunday, said they were the prettiest of years. And, as usual, I did not get to go Sunday. Something always turns up. Also had to turn down invitations to join Barister Smith on a fishing trip to Darby and Carl Nessler who wished me for competition on the rifle range.

Ed Myers stopped long enough to tell me about his fishing experiences on Darby Sunday afternoon. Went on a float trip with Budd Harden and landed a three and one-half smallmouth bass and lost another one as large after fighting it to the boat. A three and one-half pound smallmouth is a real fish. Ed landed it on a gravel bar and Budd and two Columbus fishermen greeted it with scales and tape measure as it came out of the water.

Dr. E. S. Shane was in town over the week-end and called to say "howdy." Being transferred from Memphis to Louisville, Looks mighty fine in that lieutenant commander's uniform and wearing his First World War service ribbon indicating three major offensives. Wishes for real action in this war and probably will get it. Exploded the rumor that he intends moving back to the West Coast after the war. "I'll be right back in Circleville," he declared. "I like it here."

On way to lunch I stopped to chat with William Sharkey, the tailor, who spends part of his noon hour standing at the foot of the stairs leading to his establishment and greets friends with that cheery Irish smile. One customer approached and asked how much he owed for a job and Sharkey called, "Be on your way, now. You owe me nothing." He turned and greeted a banker with the question: "Did you get your vest?" and was answered the affirmative. "Then why don't you pay me the 50 cents the job was worth?" he asked, and the banker did with a chuckle. Yes, the little Irishman helps brighten the days for many persons.

If a federal inspector walked into this plant one of these fine afternoons we probably would be prohibited the use of coal for the winter. The furnace must be started in the morning to take off the chill. Before noon even that little fire has taken off the chill to the extent of about 85 degrees and we all smother. No one knows how to prevent it.

Home in the late afternoon after a busy day and much pleased by the prospect of an evening with radio and book. Must be getting old.

TIRES BEHIND SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON—Big Bill Jeffers has left town, giving the impression that all is well with rubber, but the pinch in production of new synthetic rubber tires has already begun.

Jeffers did not disclose that actual production of tires is falling 50 percent behind schedule. The synthetic rubber is coming out in good quantity, but the job of converting that rubber into tires is lagging dangerously.

Exact figures cannot be disclosed for reasons of security, but officials here do not conceal the fact that the production of tires, month by month, is only 50 to 60 percent of the estimates of the rubber director's office.

Synthetic rubber began coming out of the factories around January 1, and all new tires for civilian purposes have been made of wholly synthetic rubber since the first of April.

But there are severe shortages of fabric material, tire-making equipment, and manpower. These shortages, rather than rubber, are holding back new tires.

This is why OPA has denied most motorists the right to buy new tires. Until a few days ago, anybody who drove as much as 241 miles a month (only 8 miles a day) could get a certificate for a new tire if an old tire wore out.

Now the figure has been upped to 601 miles a month. This means that 75 percent of U. S. cars will be eligible for only "grade three" or used tires.

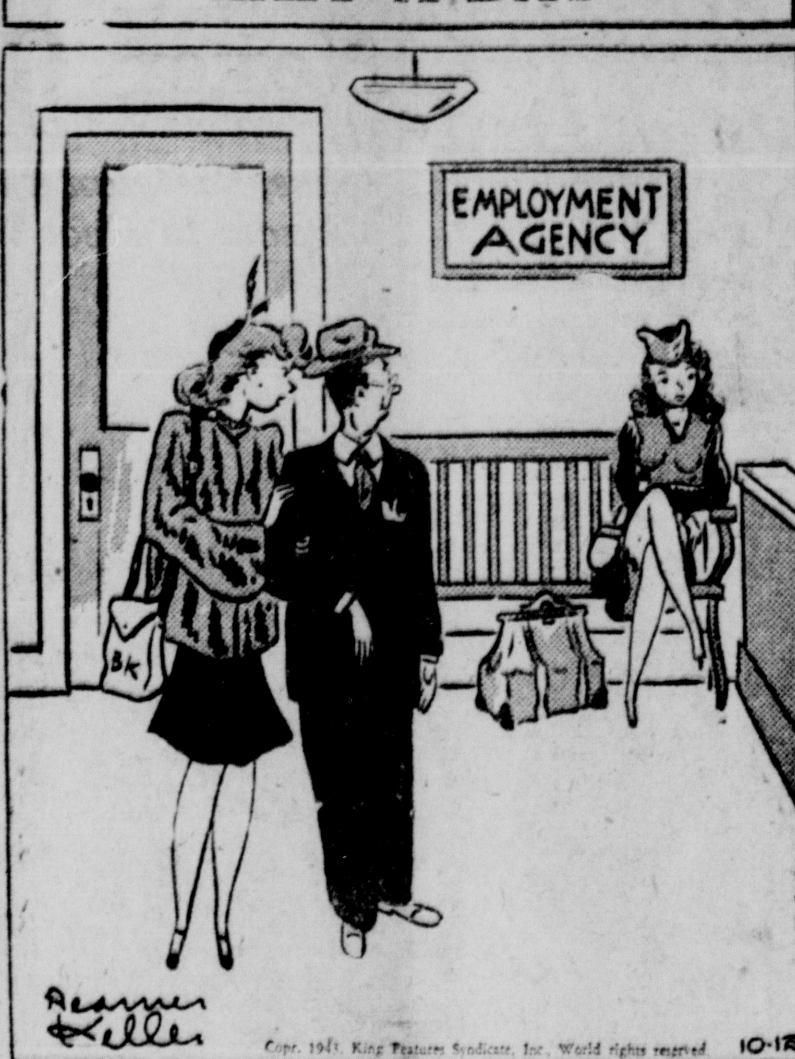

Dealers today have "working inventories" of new tires amounting to only one million, as against a desired figure of four million, and a normal peacetime figure of 16 million.

NOTE: Most serious is the truck tire situation. Current requirements call for 750,000 new truck tires per month, but spokesmen for the industry warn that not more than 300,000 should be expected.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Governor Tom Dewey, dining the other day with ex-Congresswoman Ruth Pratt of the Standard Oil millions, reaffirmed that under no circumstances would he run for the presidency . . . John H. Perry, the Florida publisher, had to fill out no less than 11 forms in an effort to try to buy a dump truck for his Kentucky farm. But though the truck had awaited a customer for two years and the tires were deteriorating, the local OPA board said no. Finally Parson Albion Arnold, for whom Perry is rebuilding a Baptist church, threatened to denounce the board from his pulpit. It looks as if Perry would now get the dump truck . . . The American Red Cross has received many indignant letters saying Mrs. Roosevelt had no right to wear a Red Cross uniform on her South Pacific trip; also claiming the ARC was playing politics by sponsoring the First Lady's jaunt . . . To this the Red Cross replies: (1) It did not pay Mrs. R's expenses; (2) She had every right to wear a Red Cross uniform, having been an active canteen worker in the last war and honorary chairman of the National Committee on Volunteer Service in this war, to say nothing of contributing a large monthly check sent to ARC; (3) Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis asked Mrs. (Continued on Page Eight)

Croup Often a Symptom

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

CROUP is a good old-fashioned word which has a very definite meaning for the mother, but may be due to any of several conditions. What it actually is and what it means to the mother is a symptom—a child whose nose and wind-

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

pipe are so stopped up that it breathes in a wheezing way and when it coughs there is a crowing, or rattling quality which plainly sounds as if the breathing passages were stopped up.

And, of course, they are stopped up. An infection, some kind of a germ has infiltrated the mucous membrane of the nose, the larynx and windpipe, causing an inflammatory reaction, including swelling of the lung and narrowing the passage.

The only question the doctor wants to ask, the only addition he makes to the diagnosis concerns the cause. Diphtheria used to be called also membranous croup, and twenty or thirty years ago the chances were that if a child were reported to have croup, the cause would be diphtheria. But thanks to the universal use of diphtheria immunization, the disease is rarely seen nowadays. I have before me the latest reports on diphtheria in the United States in 1941 and 1942, and find that in 21 cities there have been no deaths from diphtheria at all in those years.

Serious Croupy Condition

However, there is another frequent and serious condition that causes croup in children, mostly attacking those under eight years of age. It is a general infection of the throat, larynx, and windpipe, causing the lining mucous membrane to swell even to the point of obstruction, shutting off the breath. It has, therefore, assumed very serious proportions. The name given it is acute laryngo-tracheitis, which doesn't mean very much, since it seems to be due sometimes to one germ and sometimes to many. It is, however, a very serious malady.

In spite of the vagueness about causation it constitutes, by its symptoms, an entity. It can be distinguished from colds and mild forms of respiratory infection by the fact that the symptoms tend to get progressively worse. The child with a cold begins to get better and brighter after the first day, or at most, two days. But not so with this affection. The child is more and more prostrated.

Hospitalization Necessary

If the symptoms therefore do not respond to steam inhalations and ordinary cold remedies, the little patient should be placed in a hospital, because the windpipe may close up. Oxygen inhalations may be necessary. The new penicillin seems to be doing a great deal of good in these cases. The sulfa drugs are also valuable in certain of the cases.

The air in the sick room should not, like the air in the sick room of the pneumonia patient, be cold and stirring. It should be about 70 to 75 and humidified.

The condition develops most often in children under two years of age. At this age period the baby who has a cold, and who keeps getting worse and croupy needs a doctor right away.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. E. W.—Is it possible to tell an acid condition in the stomach by the change in color of a specially treated piece of paper (I think it is called litmus) when wet by the saliva of the mouth?

Answer: The stomach is always normally acid. The saliva is always normally alkaline. You cannot tell anything about the reaction of the stomach from the reaction of the saliva.

E. E. W.—Is it possible to determine by an analysis of a drop of blood taken from the finger:

(a) Poor circulation in the chest?

(b) If there are cancer germs in the body?

(c) That part of the liver is not functioning, and what percentage of the organ is inactive.

Answer: (a) No.

(b) Cancer is probably not caused by a germ, and if it is, no body knows what the germ is, and anyway it is not possible to diagnose cancer from a drop of blood.

(c) Something can be told from liver functioning by examining about 5 c.c. of blood, but not from a drop.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

THE OVERWHELMING realization of how terribly much Susan meant to him made Bill Potter more eager than ever to settle the business deal with Alicia Carter, so that he could get out of her life, and put her out of his. He was thinking about this the next day in his office when Ken Randolph came in.

Bill eyed him and frowned. "I think it's about time," he said. "When it comes to making a decision, you run neck and neck with the Carter woman."

"Maybe so," said Ken. "But she's so uncertain of herself she makes me uneasy." He paused and grinned a bit shamefacedly. "Besides, Bill, most of the money in my family is controlled by my wife, and she—"

"But you told me you had several thousand you wanted to invest," Bill cut in.

"I know—but Mrs. Randolph's pretty dubious about my investing it in Alicia Carter's property."

"Why did you tell her anything about it?"

"I always discuss matters like that with her."

"I see. Well, what's the verdict?"

"I was afraid of that," said Bill wearily. "I'm also afraid Alicia's verdict will be the same. Would you be willing to help me buy up some other property?"

"Perhaps," said Ken. "Any in mind?"

"Yes. The old Johnson farm."

"That dump!" Ken exclaimed. "It's been deserted for years—and run-down as all get-out."

"Well, I don't think it's deserted any longer."

"What do you mean?"

Bill told about seeing the men unloading a motor boat. "But don't say anything about it around Susan if you see her," he added. "She doesn't know I passed the farm last night. She thought I was working at the office."

"Ah, I see! Sneaking off to see Alicia!"

"She telephoned me," said Bill. "So I made a quick trip."

"It must have been a quick trip—if it was after one o'clock when you passed the Johnson farm."

"Never mind that part of it," said Bill. "The thing to discuss is the farm itself. We could build a good road leading from the highway, and build some nice houses out that way. The only thing is getting in touch with the Johnsons. They're scattered all over the face of the earth."

"Maybe it's some of them you saw last night," said Ken.

"By Jove, that's right!" said Bill. "Come on, let's drive out and have a look. Got time to spare?"

"Yes," said Ken. "Besides, I'd like nothing better than to see some cottages going up along the plans I've got in mind."

The two men hurried out together, and presently they were speeding off in Bill's roadster.

Meanwhile Adam North was also thinking about the Johnson farm. As a matter of fact, he thought about it frequently. In spite of himself he kept associating the farm, the pantry woman's nephew, and the motor boat—kept thinking that in some manner they were all connected. Maybe it was silly of him—but that's the way it was. Anyway, he was far from calm and happy.

If anyone had asked him to explain exactly how he felt, he would have said: "I feel as though I were in the exact corner of a cyclone funnel of cloud and wind—whirling around, and over and over." That would explain the matter perfectly. He was certainly in something of a mental maelstrom—what with making love to Susan Potter on the stage, wondering if he was actually falling in love with Brenda Leigh in reality, and being constantly nagged and worried about the troublesome things that were happening at the factory almost daily.

He sat at his desk and tried to concentrate on the business at hand, but it was difficult, for he kept remembering a blaze in the engine house which had increased in vehemence when a fire-extinguisher was turned upon it, for the simple reason that the extinguisher had been filled with gasoline. He also remembered the piece of machinery that had suddenly gone bad for no apparent reason, and a batch of tools turning out badly because of someone's carelessness. Things that pointed to sabotage, and yet things which couldn't seem to be traced. No matter how careful the investigation, he always came up against a blank wall. No one could be accused, because everyone appeared to have a cast iron alibi.

Because of those things, and because of his feeling of uneasiness—the feeling that espionage as well as sabotage had come to Linville—he had increased the guard around the factory and grounds, had appointed men to report every slightest matter that looked in the least suspicious. All the fire-extinguishers had been examined, and a careful watch kept over them. Workmen's papers had been re-examined, many of them questioned minutely, and every precaution possible taken in each and every department of the plant.

But Adam kept right on worrying. "Miss Leigh to see you," Ruth Moorehouse announced from the doorway, breaking in on Adam's thoughts. "She says it's important."

"Then send her in," said Adam. "Yes, sir."

Ruth disappeared, and Brenda appeared. She looked lovelier than ever, Adam thought, her color high, her eyes bright—and her mouth looking decidedly kissable. Then Adam thought, "I must be going crazy, thinking such things when I have so much that's important on my mind."

"Hello, Adam!" Brenda greeted. Adam got up and held out his hand. "Glad to see you," he said. "In town pretty early, aren't you?"

"Yes," said Brenda. She took the chair Adam indicated, drew it up closer to his desk. "Adam, someone visited the Johnson place last night!" she announced.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Fall Chores in the Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association

THE NEW Victory gardener now looks forward eagerly to getting at his or her gardening next spring. The more experienced gardener begins now to prepare and plan for next year's garden.

There are many advantages to be gained from "fall chores" in the Victory garden. Soil, for example, which is worked thoroughly in the fall can usually be planted two weeks earlier in the spring.

Fall planting of many fruit trees and fruiting shrubs permits them to recover from the shock of transplanting now and they can start growing in the spring just as soon as the ground warms up.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, if the vegetable garden now has nothing but a crop of weeds, turn them under as deeply as possible. Weeds turned under help to add humus to the soil.

Any stable manure or plant refuse turned under at the same time will benefit the soil just that much more.

WAKING UP
THERE are some encouraging signs of life lately in the United States senate. It begins to blink its eyes and sit up and look around. Partly this awakening may come from a dawning realization that there is going to be an election next year. There is some stimulation also in the return of the senatorial exploring expedition, which has been abroad and felt stirrings of life in the outer world.
There is a fillip, too, in the overwhelming vote recently cast by the house of representatives on the Fulbright resolution, in favor of cooperation with the aforesaid world. That was something to make dry bones rattle, in spite of the normal indifference of the senate to the vagaries of the lower house.
Rubbing its eyes and looking around, and noting the acclaim given by the nation to that resolution, observant senators vaguely recalled something very similar, suggested in their own branch of government more than half a year ago. They thought they had put that baby to sleep, but it has been plumped into their laps, livelier than ever. And the public cheers for the kid instead of dozing with the senate.
It is a terrible situation. The most deliberate body on earth has heretofore taken the initiative in such disturbing matters, and now it finds that all it has is a referendum.

RELIGION IN RUSSIA
CAN it be that the supposedly "Godless Reds" are turning religious again? Color has nothing to do with such a matter, but human nature has a great deal. And there certainly are signs not exactly of a religious "revival" in Russia, but a restoration of religious interest and tolerance.
From that may come a new development of religious faith and practice in Russia, slow but strong. In pre-revolutionary times, when left to their own devices, the Russians were very religious. Their dense ignorance, however, led the masses into lamentable superstition, under corrupt and ignorant leaders. There is less danger of such abuses now, with a more literate and intelligent nation. The Russians seem to be slowly growing modern in their general thinking, as they have been doing in their industry and national defense.
The worst thing about these pesky Japs is that, having no sense of time, they don't know when to quit.
When Hitler brags about his "Fortress Europe," the Allies can retort with "A mighty fortress is our God."

(a) Poor circulation in the chest?
(b) If there are cancer germs in the body?
(c) That part of the liver is not functioning, and what percentage of the organ is inactive?
Answer: (a) No.
(b) Cancer is probably not caused by a germ, and if it is, nobody knows what the germ is, and anyway it is not possible to diagnose cancer from a drop of blood.
(c) Something can be told from liver functioning by examining about 5 c.c. of blood, but not from a drop.

Up earlier than usual and soon away to the plant to scan the morning prints for over-night happenings. Nothing of importance, so turned to the day's stint. Spent practically all day at desk now, getting out only on occasion. Greatly miss my former daily strolls in and out of the places of trade. Well, this is war.
There goes Willard Timmons, who because of the meat shortage or something went duck hunting for the first time. Luther Boyer and Emmett Morgan saw him blaze away at a bird with both barrels. "What kind of a duck was that, anyway?" asked Timmons. His "duck" was a kingfisher.
Jim Sweeteninger dropped in to ask how I liked the hills Sunday. Said they were the prettiest of years. And, as usual, I did not get to go Sunday. Something always turns up. Also had to turn down invitations to join Barstler Smith on a fishing trip to Darby and Civil Noakes who wished me for competition on the rifle range.
Ed Myers stopped long enough to tell me about his fishing experiences on Darby Sunday afternoon. Went on a float trip with Budd Harden and landed a three and one-half smallmouth bass and lost another one as large after fighting it to the boat. A three and one-half pound smallmouth is a real fish. Ed landed it on a gravel bar and Budd and two Columbus fishermen greeted it with scales and tapemeasure as it came out of the water.
Dr. E. S. Shane was in town over the week-end and called to say "howdy." Being transferred from Memphis to Louisville. Looks mighty fine in that lieutenant commander's uniform and wearing his First World War service ribbon indicating three major offensives. Wishes for real action in this war and probably will get it. Exploded the rumor that he intends moving back to the West coast after the war. "I'll be right back in Circleville," he declared. "I like it here."
On way to lunch I stopped to chat with William Sharkey, the tailor, who spends part of his noon hour standing at the foot of the stairs leading to his establishment and greets friends with that cheery Irish smile. One customer approached and asked how much he owed for a job and Sharkey called, "Be on your way, now. You owe me nothing." He turned and greeted a banker with the question: "Did you get your vest?" and was answered the affirmative. "Then why don't you pay me the 50 cents the job was worth?" he asked, and the banker did with a chuckle. Yes, the little Irishman helps brighten the days for many persons.
If a federal inspector walked into this plant one of these fine afternoons we probably would be prohibited the use of coal for the winter. The furnace must be started in the morning to take off the chill. Before noon even that little fire has taken off the chill to the extent of about 85 degrees and we all smother. No one knows how to prevent it.
Home in the late afternoon after a busy day and much pleased by the prospect of an evening with radio and book. Must be getting old.

WEEDS PLOWED OR DUG UNDER
Fall Chores in the Victory Garden
By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association
THE NEW Victory gardener now looks forward eagerly to getting to his or her gardening next spring. The more experienced gardener begins now to prepare and plan for next year's garden.
There are many advantages to be gained from "fall chores" in the Victory garden. Soil, for example, which is worked thoroughly in the fall can usually be planted two weeks earlier in the spring.
Fall planting of many fruit trees and fruiting shrubs permits them to recover from the shock of transplanting now and they can start growing in the spring just as soon as the ground warms up.
As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, if the vegetable garden now has nothing but a crop of weeds, turn them under as deeply as possible. Weeds turned under help to add humus to the soil.
Any stable manure or plant refuse turned under at the same time will benefit the soil just that much more.

Take care in writing, and signatures. Safeguard the affectional relations, as personal influence counts for much. The climax may be important public popularity.
(If It Is Your Birthday

Louise C. Helwage And George L. Roth Married

Ceremony Read At Church In Southland

In a quiet wedding in the Methodist church of Beaufort, South Carolina, Miss Louise Carter Helwage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Helwage of 400 North Court street and Platoon Sergeant George L. Roth, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roth of 203 North Scioto street, exchanged their wedding vows Sunday at 6:30 p. m. The double ring service of the church was read by the Rev. Theodore Jones.

Sergeant and Mrs. Richard Bonebrake of Beaufort were the only attendants.

Miss Helwage chose for her wedding a smart Fall outfit of dark brown, the crepe frock being trimmed with eggshell. Her corsage was of white rose buds.

Mrs. Bonebrake was in spice brown with matching accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow rose buds.

The bride is a 1938 graduate of Circleville high school and was graduated from Virginia Interimont, Bristol, Va. Until she left for her wedding in the South, Miss Helwage was employed at the Air Service Command, Patterson Field, Fairfield.

Sergeant Roth is a graduate also of Circleville high school and attended Ohio university, Athens. He is a member of the United States Marine Corps and is stationed at Parris Island, S. C. For the present, Sergeant Roth and his bride are living at Beaufort.

Monday Club

Purchase of a $100 War Bond by members of the Monday club was announced at the regular session of the organization Monday in the club room, Memorial hall. Letters were read from the General Federation of Women's clubs and from the president of the Southeast district. Miss Margaret Rooney was in the chair and the meeting was opened with all members giving the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

After roll call, Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, chairman of the evening's program, presented Mrs. Sterling Lamb and Miss Jeannette Reichelderfer who had prepared the evening's study.

Mrs. Lamb's excellent paper, "Stalin's Foreign Policy," briefly described the recent leaders of Russia, including Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin, as unscrupulous in attaining desired ends. She said that all have proved themselves both brutal and fearless, true leaders in radicalism.

She stated also that to understand the Soviet foreign policy, it is not enough to analyze it in terms of Marxist ideology, as has frequently been done by left wing commentators. It must first be analyzed in terms of Russia's geography, history and economic development. No matter what has been the philosophy of the Soviet leaders, they could not escape the fact that they achieved power in a vast country of continental expanse, richly endowed with natural resources, most of which have as yet been barely developed, but poor in industrial skills and transportation facilities and almost wholly lacking in political experience.

She concluded her discussion by saying that even though some writers believed that the rulers of Russia are men of good will toward other nations and that they desire a peaceful, stable world as they have shown in their public statements of policy and deeds. In the past, the foreign policy of the Soviet government is to insure the territorial security of the Soviet Union.

Miss Reichelderfer in discussing "Education for Citizenship in Russia" said that after the 1917 revolution, when communism was adopted, a radical experiment in education was undertaken by the government. She gave in detail the different types of teaching which were undertaken and the changes that were made from time to time in the educational program.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur England and sons, Clyde and Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. McClelland Clark and daughters, Ellen and Phyllis, Mrs. Charles Schlegel Sr., Mrs. Nannie Fowler, Ronald Lee and Joyce Ann Gaines, Mr. and Mrs. David Frazier of near Reynoldsburg sent a lovely gift of flowers to Mrs. Frazier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stonerock.

Chinese Red Ensemble

THIS suit and its matching topcoat (no three-piece outfits are sold as such, these times) is made of red wool in the inspired tint of Chinese lacquer. Background for blonde or brunette, this cheery color here is teamed with black to make the most of its brilliant hue.

A black velvet inlay backs the three-button, wrist-length jacket; supple black broadtail lines the full-length coat and doubles back in a wide tuxedo collar. There are two slot pockets on the coat, none on the jacket which, however, boasts gilt plastic roses as buttons.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur England and sons, Clyde and Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. McClelland Clark and daughters, Ellen and Phyllis, Mrs. Charles Schlegel Sr., Mrs. Nannie Fowler, Ronald Lee and Joyce Ann Gaines, Mr. and Mrs. David Frazier of near Reynoldsburg sent a lovely gift of flowers to Mrs. Frazier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stonerock.

Cromley-Diehl Marriage

Miss Leda Diehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Diehl, and Robert Cromley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley of Walnut township, were married Saturday at 8 p. m. in the parsonage of the United Brethren church of Ashville. The Rev. O. W. Smith read the service at 8 p. m.

Miss Diehl chose a frock of poudre blue for her wedding. The couple was unattended. For the present, the new Mr. and Mrs. Cromley are living at the home of his parents.

Ramey-Harper

Announcement has been made of the marriage Saturday of Miss Evelyn Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Harper, Chillicothe, and George Albert Ramey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ramey of Circleville. The single ring ceremony was performed at 4:30 p. m. by the Rev. Ross W. Hay-slip of the Church of Christ in Christian Union at his home in this city. Members of the immediate families were present for the occasion.

The former Miss Harper was a member of the 1942 graduating class of Chillicothe high school and before her marriage was employed in the office of the U. S. Shoe corporation in Chillicothe.

Mr. Ramey is an employee of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. He and his bride will live in Circleville.

Just a Dash of Scarlet

The collarless finish of this jacket's neckline is an invitation to a fur scarf.

JUST the dash of red that your lipstick gives your pretty face is the deft lick of color which takes this chic black wool suit out of the all-black genre. It is applied, this bright highlight, by silk fringe which dangles from the cartridge pleated epaulettes on both shoulders.

Both the hip-length cut-away jacket and the skillfully cut narrow skirt are buttoned from top to bottom with small black bone buttons.

Chinese Red Ensemble

THIS suit and its matching topcoat (no three-piece outfits are sold as such, these times) is made of red wool in the inspired tint of Chinese lacquer. Background for blonde or brunette, this cheery color here is teamed with black to make the most of its brilliant hue.

A black velvet inlay backs the three-button, wrist-length jacket; supple black broadtail lines the full-length coat and doubles back in a wide tuxedo collar. There are two slot pockets on the coat, none on the jacket which, however, boasts gilt plastic roses as buttons.

SOLVES COAL SHORTAGE

VANCOUVER, B. C.—One Vancouver man solved the coal shortage. He got a job as a delivery truck driver for Arrow Kirk Coal Co., loaded up an order of four tons of coal and left the yard, presumably on the way to his first customer. His first customer was himself, and company officials have not heard of him or the coal since. Police located the truck, empty.

FOUR NAVY MEN READY TO AID WILDCAT CREW
EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 12—Northwestern's hopes of victory over Great Lakes Saturday were bolstered today with the announcement that four navy V-12 players became eligible for the squad. They are Dan Orlich, end; John Bicanich, guard; Marvin Grubaugh, tackle, and Tony Saracino, fullback. Offensive tactics will be stressed by the Wildcats throughout the week.

There are 47 species and subspecies of sharks in American coastal waters.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 12—Michigan's bruised football squad took light drills again today, but tomorrow intensive practice sessions start for the Minnesota game at Ann Arbor October 23. While most of the squad was bruised in the Notre Dame game, the most seriously hurt were Bill Daley and Elroy Hirsch who suffered recurrences of old injuries in last week's battle.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Fritz Zivic, former welterweight champion, was back in good standing today with the Illinois Athletic Commission.

The commission lifted the suspension which it imposed for Zivic's failure to go through with a bout against Tommy James in Chicago last June. His reinstatement automatically puts him in the good graces of the National Boxing Association and rescinds the ban against him in all NBA territory.

This action, permits Zivic to meet Jose Basora in Detroit Friday and Bobby Richardson in the Chicago Stadium October 29.

Dickey and Chandler Big Men As Yankees Regain World's Title

By Lawton Carver

ENROUTE TO NEW YORK WITH THE YANKEES, Oct. 12—The richest and probably most ragged World Series in baseball history has returned the championship to the New York Yankees by four games to one just as though they had loaned the thing to the St. Louis Cardinals for repayment on demand.

And towering above them all today was the man who best typifies in baseball what the word Yankee means. That would be the long-legged 36-year-old Bill Dickey.

In point of tenure, he has been a Yankee since 1928 and thus longer with the club than any of the rest, besides which he stands as a hang-over from the olden, so-called golden days.

Beyond that he carries a mace that really will pulverize a man in the clutch, as he did yesterday when in the sixth inning he slammed that homer out of the park with Charley Keller on base to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, for Spud Chandler.

The whole thing transpired just as though it had been ordained by some fate which watched over these things and takes command to make it work out right like a Chinese puzzle. That is what this World Series was, a conquest that pulled in more money—and thus a bigger payday for the players than any before, yet one that produced such ragged baseball, especially by the Cardinals, that it might have been a warm up for something yet to come.

You never could quite fit the parts together from one minute to the next, as 15 errors bobbed up, two wild pitches went hurtling past catchers and the Cardinal offense and defense wound up all wire-haired and whipped apart.

Chandler Big Man

The biggest Yankee of them all in the final summing up was Chandler because he won the clinching game to sweep the Cards aside four games to one, after having first won the opening game.

But it took an old Yankee to spark the thing as that Yankee did when he lifted the ball to the roof of the right field pavilion in the sixth after Keller had singled with two down. The ball hit and bounced and went on away from there into the vicinity of neighboring homes, possibly right into somebody's parlor.

Dickey said afterward that the ball was just a little lower than his chest and a fast one, thus ruining Mort Cooper. He had pitched the Cards' only victory in the second game and was Manager Billy Southworth's last hope yesterday when they were backed against the wall.

As it turned out, Cooper started by striking out Frankie Crosetti, Bud Metheny and Bill Johnson in the first inning, then followed that up to make it five in a row by striking out Keller and Dickey in the second. He looked mighty fine

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 12—Michigan's bruised football squad took light drills again today, but tomorrow intensive practice sessions start for the Minnesota game at Ann Arbor October 23. While most of the squad was bruised in the Notre Dame game, the most seriously hurt were Bill Daley and Elroy Hirsch who suffered recurrences of old injuries in last week's battle.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Fritz Zivic, former welterweight champion, was back in good standing today with the Illinois Athletic Commission.

The commission lifted the suspension which it imposed for Zivic's failure to go through with a bout against Tommy James in Chicago last June. His reinstatement automatically puts him in the good graces of the National Boxing Association and rescinds the ban against him in all NBA territory.

This action, permits Zivic to meet Jose Basora in Detroit Friday and Bobby Richardson in the Chicago Stadium October 29.

BUCKS TO FACE MIGHTY PURDUE CREW SATURDAY
By Gil Karp
COLUMBUS, Oct. 12—If past records are of any value in determining the outcome of a gridiron tussle then Ohio State is in for a severe battering when it tangles with a superb Purdue contingent in Cleveland this Saturday.

The Boilermakers have a great array of players.

Standing three deep in all positions, the Boilermakers have proved themselves to be as tough on the defensive as on the offense.

Against such powerhouse as Great Lakes, Marquette, Illinois and Camp Grant, the Engineers have not yielded more than 50 yards by rushing in any single encounter and have yet to taste the bitter fruit of defeat.

However, they are not a defensive team primarily. Purdue has a collection of backfield stars that would make any coach's mouth water. The Boilermakers power their potent offense from a Chicago Bear "T." If you will remember back just a few seasons ago you will recall the damage the Bears inflicted on the opposition when they introduced their "T."

The success of this particular "T" depends upon one good anchor man. The Bears have Sid Luckman while Purdue has Lue Butkovich. Now no man will say that Butkovich is equal in ability to Luckman, but he comes close enough to make State's coach, Paul Brown break into a sweat everytime some foolish individual mentions his name.

Ohio State followers need no introduction to this terror who hits the line with all the explosive force of dynamite.

Playing with Illinois last season he returned a kickoff 76 yards to pay dirt only to have the play recalled for stepping out of bounds, with the secondary line evidently hidden in the snow.

In Purdue's four victories, Butkovich has scored seven touchdowns, which in any man's language means he is "hot." He's been followed closely by his teammate, Stan Dubicki, a halfback, with three scores, nine conversions and a field goal, but Dubicki is out with injuries.

Coach Brown has no reason for optimism, but he praised his youthful charges in the gallant fight they put up against the superior Great Lakes team last Saturday.

"We did the best we could do, and then got licked," he said.

The outwheeled and outmanned Bucks put up a sensational but losing battle against the Bluejackets, losing 13-6. They played the Navy boys to a standstill in the first half, but the odds were too great and Great Lakes punched across two touchdowns to salt away the ball game.

Dickey and Chandler Big Men As Yankees Regain World's Title

By Lawton Carver

ENROUTE TO NEW YORK WITH THE YANKEES, Oct. 12—The richest and probably most ragged World Series in baseball history has returned the championship to the New York Yankees by four games to one just as though they had loaned the thing to the St. Louis Cardinals for repayment on demand.

And towering above them all today was the man who best typifies in baseball what the word Yankee means. That would be the long-legged 36-year-old Bill Dickey.

In point of tenure, he has been a Yankee since 1928 and thus longer with the club than any of the rest, besides him who stands as a hang-over from the olden, so-called golden days.

Beyond that he carries a mace that really will pulverize a man in the clutch, as he did yesterday when in the sixth inning he slammed that homer out of the park with Charley Keller on base to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, for Spud Chandler.

The whole thing transpired just as though it had been ordained by some fate which watched over these things and takes command to make it work out right like a Chinese puzzle. That is what this World Series was, a conquest that pulled in more money—and thus a bigger payday for the players than any before, yet one that produced such ragged baseball, especially by the Cardinals, that it might have been a warm up for something yet to come.

You never could quite fit the parts together from one minute to the next, as 15 errors bobbed up, two wild pitches went hurtling past catchers and the Cardinal offense and defense wound up all wire-haired and whipped apart.

Chandler Big Man

The biggest Yankee of them all in the final summing up was Chandler because he won the clinching game to sweep the Cards aside four games to one, after having first won the opening game.

But it took an old Yankee to spark the thing as that Yankee did when he lifted the ball to the roof of the right field pavilion in the sixth after Keller had singled with two down. The ball hit and bounced and went on away from there into the vicinity of neighboring homes, possibly right into somebody's parlor.

Dickey said afterward that the ball was just a little lower than his chest and a fast one, thus ruining Mort Cooper. He had pitched the Cards' only victory in the second game and was Manager Billy Southworth's last hope yesterday when they were backed against the wall.

As it turned out, Cooper started by striking out Frankie Crosetti, Bud Metheny and Bill Johnson in the first inning, then followed that up to make it five in a row by striking out Keller and Dickey in the second. He looked mighty fine

TONY PASTOR GUEST

Tony Pastor, popular young saxophone player and band leader who opens at the Paramount theatre October 13, will be guest conductor on Barry Wood's "Million Dollar Band" over NBC Saturday at 9 p. m.

Born in Middletown, Conn., Tony started his musical career at the age of 16, and later played with Smith Ballew, Joe Venuti, Vincent Lopez and finally with Artie Shaw. He was the entire saxophone section in the original Artie Shaw string band. They used only one sax. He formed his own band shortly after the dissolution of this outfit, and has since played many successful theatre and hotel engagements all over the country.

CARMEN MIRANDA

Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian bombshell, is the headliner from the entertainment world for "What's New?" show to be presented Saturday at 6 p. m. over the Blue network. The new comedy discovery, Jack Douglas, will make his fourth appearance on the full-hour broadcast.

In addition to Carmen and her Brazilian bandmen, host Don Ameche will feature Toscha Seidel, famous violinist and Victor Red Seal recording artist, now in the U. S. Navy. Seidel is stationed at the Naval Training Base in San Diego, California.

Dynamic Carmen Miranda will make her first radio guest appearance since her recovery from a recent serious illness. The Latin-American songstress and dancer is now in production for her newest movie, "The Gang's All Here." The film, which will also star Alice Faye, Phil Baker and Edward Everett Horton, will be made in technicolor.

SALUTES WEST POINT

Sammy Kaye, who is saluting the collegians of America on his show Wednesdays, 7 p. m., by playing their football songs in dance tempo, turns the spotlight on West Point this Wednesday. Sammy and his Swing and Swayers will give out with a special arrangement of "On, Brave Old Army Team."

JANE DARWELL

Women's voluntary organizations helped the wounded and did soldierly war work as far back as the Civil War as will be demonstrated on Cavalcade of America, Monday, October 18, when "The General Who Wore Gallico" is broadcast over NBC from Hollywood. Jane Darwell, herself a di-

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Erie Stanley Gardner, most famous of the nation's mystery writers, reached New York this week to help select the actor to play "Perry Mason" on the air. With a brand new, original story, "The New Adventures of Perry Mason" comes to the microphone over CBS starting Monday, October 18, at 1:45 p. m., with a remarkable new plot called "The Case of the Unwanted Wife." Gertrude Warner has been cast as Della Street, Mason's luscious secretary, and Joe Lund will play his private investigator, Paul Drake. But the role of Perry Mason himself will not be filled until the famous author passes on about 30 actors of the stage and radio who are after the part.

Lionel Barrymore, "Mayor of the Town" on CBS Wednesdays, spent a full day this week at the microphone. Rehearsing for his program took up four hours, the two broadcasts another hour, and in between he rehearsed and aired a government "Mail Call" show, making a total of eight hours of microphonics.

When Xavier Cugat, "Dubonnet Date" maestro, records "Alma Llanera" for his picture, "Mr. Co-Ed," a guest on the M-G-M lot will be Senor Rivas, Venezuelan consul, who will supervise making of the Venezuelan national song.

"Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street" goes calling again, in its October 31 broadcast, which will originate at the WAVE training station at Hunter College, N. Y. Guest stars for the occasions will be Carl Brisson, recently selected as the WAVE pin-up boy, and Oscar Levant.

The inside story of how Chinese patriots befriended the celebrated Flying Tigers will be dramatized by the "Treasury Star Parade." Titled "No Greater Sacrifice," it stars Ted Weaver as an American pilot and will be heard the week of October 15, on more than 850 stations. Paul Whiteman and Bob Crosby are also scheduled for quarter-hour transcriptions.

At a rehearsal recess at a recent Burns and Allen show, George, in a reminiscent mood, admitted to the other cast members that during his early vaudeville days he had a tendency to stammer. "Frequently," he recalled, "I'd have such a tough time getting out my opening line that Gracie would be off in the wings before I could urge her to begin the regular line of patter."

Harry W. Flannery, CBS news analyst, will make the opening address, October 18, at a rally of the Los Angeles War Chest Drive, as part of a national co-operative campaign of various patriotic fund-raising organizations.

Deadline Draws Near for Mailing Christmas Gifts Overseas

MANY SOLDIERS MAY HAVE DRAB HOLIDAY SEASON

Oct. 15 Final Day To Send To Army, Nov. 1 Last For Sailors, Marines

RULES TO BE OBEYED

Postoffice Gives Advice On Preparation And Guarding Presents

Unless several hundred Circleville and Pickaway county persons who have sons, brothers, husbands or sweethearts in Uncle Sam's Army overseas get busy many of these men will be without holiday gifts when Christmas arrives.

The Circleville postoffice reported Tuesday that many persons have sent packages to men in service overseas, but added that many, many more had failed to do so.

Next Friday, October 15, is the final date for mailing Christmas packages to Navy and Marine personnel in foreign stations.

After October 15, Army personnel will have to request through the government for relatives to mail them Christmas packages. All Christmas packages should be indorsed with these words: "Christmas parcel."

Requirements Listed

Requirements for overseas mail include: five pounds weight limit; 15 inches maximum length of package; 36 inches, maximum length and girth combined.

No food or clothing should be put into the mails since Army and Navy personnel are well supplied with both. Not more than one Christmas package will be accepted for mailing in any one week when sent by or on behalf of the same person or firm to or for the same addressee.

Packaging—

Articles must be packed in metal, wool or solid fiberboard or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard or strong fully telescoping cardboard boxes. Fiberboard and cardboard boxes must be securely wrapped in strong paper and tied with twine before they will be accepted for overseas mailing.

To Be Inspected

Secure the covering of the parcel to minimize delay in the inspection of contents because all parcels are subject to military censorship.

Combination packages including miscellaneous toilet articles, hard candies, soaps must be tightly packed so that articles will not be loosened in transit.

Christmas boxes must be in substantial containers.

Candies in thin pasteboard boxes must be in wood, metal or corrugated pasteboard.

Sealed packages of candy, tobacco, cigars, toilet articles in simplest mercantile form can be placed in parcels without affecting parcel post classification of such packages.

Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments such as razors, knives, etc. must have their points or edges protected so they cannot cut through their coverings and damage other mail.

Perishable matter will not be accepted.

Intoxicants, inflammable materials such as matches, lighters and lighter fluids; poisons or composition which may kill or injure another or damage the mails, are unavailable.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again.—Ecclesiastes 3:20.

Kiwanians enjoyed an interesting talk Monday evening by Ed Penisten, Chillicothe newspaperman and sportsman, who spoke concerning some of his experiences. Penisten, a guest of Renick W. Dunlap, told many stories of happenings throughout the sports world. Corporal Technician Lester Reid, former Ross county prosecutor, now stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., was a guest of the club.

New officers of the American Legion will be installed Wednesday evening at Memorial hall. Refreshments will be served following the ceremony. John Bolender is succeeding Warren Baker as commander.

Clarence Helvering, safety-service director, appealed to townspeople Tuesday to put water on leaves in front of their homes and in their yards to prevent fires. The fire department has been called out five times in the last 48 hours because of leaf and grass fires.

A meeting of the general Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board, originally planned Thursday evening, has been postponed until October 21. Elmer Stebleton, ration board clerk, said the date has been changed because of the Kiwanis club's Benno Rabinof concert at the high school that evening.

Extreme dry weather continues to prevail in Pickaway county. During the last 35 days only one-tenth of an inch of rain has been recorded on the government gauge.

Several youths of the Stoutsville, and Amanda districts have been accepted for army and navy duty after being sent to induction center with Fairfield county draft contingents. Included are William E. Imler, Stoutsville; James A. Cormany, Canal Winchester RFD; Eldon R. Stebleton, Amanda RFD. The former was taken for the army and the latter two for the navy.

There will be a games party at the Elk's club on Wednesday evening, starting at 8:30 p. m. The public is invited.

Mrs. Beeman Morrison of Amanda Route 2 was removed home Tuesday from Berger hospital where she had undergone surgery.

Mrs. Thelma Ramey of South Washington street submitted to minor surgery Tuesday in Berger hospital.

Harley Turley of Sinking Springs was removed home Tuesday from Berger hospital where he had been undergoing treatment.

Dr. P. C. Routzahn will be out of town to attend a post graduate refresher course from Wednesday through Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cave, Stoutsville Route 1, are parents of a daughter born Sunday in Lancaster hospital.

Paul Adkins of Braeburn Farm, Pickaway township, is reported as improving in Berger hospital where he has been seriously ill since an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Lewis Hohenstine remains seriously ill in Berger hospital where he is being treated for a leg fracture.

No change is reported in the condition of Miss Anna Kirkwood of North Scioto street who has been receiving treatment in Berger hospital following a stroke.

Mrs. Charles Lemaster and son were removed Tuesday from Berger hospital to their home 327 East Mound street.

Mrs. Carl Tigner and son, 159 York street, were removed home Tuesday from Berger hospital.

CURLEY WANTS FRIENDS

Congressman James M. Curley, former governor of Massachusetts and many times mayor of Boston, long has been a bitter foe of White House assistant David Niles. One of the leading liberals of Boston, Niles has been a thorn in Curley's side, and the big, burly Massachusetts politician has gone out of his way to spread critical stories about him.

But the other day, coming down on the train from Boston to Washington, Niles saw his Pullman compartment door pushed open and there stood his old critic, Jim Curley.

"Dave," said Curley, "I know you feel I've said some bad things about you, but I want you to know that I think you and I ought to work more harmoniously together."

We can do a lot of things if we pull together."

Niles did not appear too enthusiastic, but Curley persisted. "You and I ought to be seen together in public occasionally," Curley suggested, "so that people will realize that we are friends."

The meeting ended inconclusively. Niles gave no promises.

Curley is under indictment by the Justice department. Niles is an influential member of the administration.

SPANISH DISCRIMINATION

Fair-minded Assistant Secretary of War Jack McCloy has tried to rectify the Army's former unfair discrimination against youngsters who fought in the Spanish Civil war, many of them barred from either commissions or combat service. However, there is still room for improvement.

One Spanish veteran is Robert Thompson, who commanded a company of Loyalist troops in Spain. Enlisting after Pearl Harbor, he went to the South Pacific where he was cited for bravery by MacArthur.

Thompson, only a sergeant, recommended a plan by which his company could cross a stream in the face of enemy fire. The plan was for Thompson to swim the stream pulling a rope after him, and then use the rope to steady the other men as they crossed. The plan was successful and the Japs were routed.

MacArthur recommended Thompson for the Distinguished Service Cross and a captaincy. After considerable delay the citation was granted, but the captaincy was withheld by the brass hats.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

American doughboys in Iran have found a good way to dodge U. S. military police and get out of camp at night. They take advantage of the Mohammedan custom of veiling their women, and slip on a full-length, cover-all veil which Iranian women wear from head to toe. Military police have been instructed to protect Iranian women and prevent all flirting, so they don't dare stop a veiled figure to ask her (or him) to lower the veil, and see whether an American doughboy is behind it. . . . COLUMBUS, O.—Ohio State university students have a new definition for the term "higher education." With the beginning of regular flying from the University's new 400-acre airport located seven miles north of the campus, students at the University now talk about "higher education" only in the light of flying.

More than 162,000 deer and elk hides, collected during the 1942-43 hunting season, went into the leather trade, chiefly for service gloves and other military uses.
